HUERTA APPEALS TO U. S.

DIVORCE TRIAL IS DELAYED

Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul, the society leader who is suing Edward L. Rantoul, Harvard graduate and clubman, for a divorce, was taken suddenly ill and collapsed in her automobile today on her way to the East Cambridge court. As a result Judge Hardy, who is presiding at the divorce trial, conferred with counsel for both sides and ordered a postponement of the case until 1:30 this afternoon.

The delay caused a sensation in the courtroom, which was thronged with spectators, mostly fashionably gowned women. It was explained that Mrs. Rantoul's illness was due to the strain of the trial ordeal and that her condition had been aggravated by an attack of indigestion.

It was declared that her facing her husband in the court room as he rehearsed the story of how Chester Chapin Rumrill, for whom the wife had openly confessed her love, entered the Rantoul domestic drama, might have proven the climax to the nervous strain under which the wife has been ever since the trial began.

TAKEN HOME AT ONCE.

As soon as Mrs. Rantoul was taken sick, the automobile was turned back to her Jamaica Plain home. Here she was treated. Her request that Attorney Thomas W. Proctor, her counsel, be notified, was at once complied with.

Attorney Proctor went to the bench where he talked with Judge Hardy. Then the judge called Attorney Thomas Hunt, counsel for Rantoul. The three talked for fifteen minutes in the judge's private room.

The delay gave rise to reports of a possible compromise by which the case would be stopped. These rumors were promptly denied by the counsel on both sides.

At the conference the lawyers talked with Judge Hardy regarding an agreement to shorten the trial by omitting evidence dealing with certain phases of the case. There was some mystery about this. It was understood that testimony which came out at the trial a year ago might be dispensed with and that an agreement might shorten Rantoul's testimony very materially.

Rantoul was on hand ready to take the stand to continue his testimony. He walked up and down the corridor, and made no comment when he learned that his wife was ill.

Dr. Putnam who was in the courtroom, on hearing the news, at once went to a telephone and talked with some one at Mrs. Rantoul's home. A year ago the trial was stopped a number of times owing to Mrs. Rantoul's condition, and Dr. Putnam and Dr. Barnes treated her at the time.

It was stated that the wife would probably be able to attend the trial this afternoon, possibly by 1:30 o'clock.

Mr. Rantoul's testimony may last all this afternoon. Attorney Thomas W. Proctor, counsel for Mrs. Rantoul,

For License Vote at State Elections

The Election Laws Committee of the Legislature voted today for a favorable report on the bill providing for voting on the liquor license question on State election day in November. At present the question is voted on at the municipal and town elections. The liquor interests favored the bill, which was opposed by a number of temperance advocates. The two dissenters from the committee's report were Senator Cuade of Essex and Representative Shorburne of Brookline.

Fisher Attacks Brandeis' Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Louis D. Brandeis' proposal for increasing the revenues of railroads $50,000,000 a year by making a charge for spur track, ferry car and trap car services was attacked as unsound at a hearing today before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Harlan by Walter L. Fisher, former secretary of the Interior, representing the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Continue Assault Case of "Sandy"

"Sandy" Ferguson, the Chelsea pugilist, who was arrested late last night charged with assaulting a colored man named Alfred Whalen, was arraigned today before Judge Bossom in the Chelsea Police Court. Ferguson pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until March 5.

O'CONNELL ASSAILED BY WOMAN

Miss Mary E. Sargent, chief clerk under Commissioner of Animal Industries Fred E. Walker, and Mrs. Walker, the commissioner's wife, today defended themselves against former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell's charge that Walker had brought them to a hearing before the legislative Committee on Agriculture to influence the lawmakers.

Miss Sargent called the former Congressman's attack "cowardly, unGentlemanly and brutal." She said Mrs. Walker had wept over the accusation.

Mrs. Walker declared the former Congressman's charge was "uncalled for" and showed a lack of "good breeding." Miss Sargent said today:

"It was my business as chief clerk of the department to attend the hearing and take notes. I have been doing this for five years as a part of my regular duties.

WOMAN MOVED TO TEARS.

"Mr. O'Connell's case collapsed with a dull, sickening thud after his ungentlemanly attack on Mrs. Walker and myself. It was very embarrassing for us women and the room of fifty people in the hearing room stared at us in a discomforting manner. Mrs. Walker, who is a very pretty woman, but in delicate health, cried at the insinuations, as it put her in a very peculiar light.

"Mr. O'Connell's cowardly attack on what he called 'Walker-Mahine' made me mad clean through. I had worked for Dr. Peters for several years before Mr. Walker took up the work, and had attended hearings ever since I came into the position.

"The whole thing was brutal and uncalled for."

Mrs. Walker said:

"Mr. O'Connell's foolish attack, accusing me of being present for the purpose of influencing the committee in favor of my husband's retaining his position, was entirely uncalled for. He felt the resentment which followed his remarks almost as soon as the words were spoken.

"There was no place for Mr. O'Connell too small after he sat down and began to feel the effect of his thoughtless words."

Vincent Astor Better.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Vincent Astor, confined to his home in No. 12 West Fifth-sixth street by a severe cold which has settled upon his chest, is reported better.

H. C. Frick Buys $400,000 Van Dyck

Henry C. Frick has added another treasure to his memorial collection of pictures. It was reported today, and may soon be in his North Shore art gallery. It is said to cost more than $400,000. He has acquired from Lord Aberconn of England the famous Van Dyck portrait of Paola Adorno, Marchesa di Brignole-Sale, which is regarded as one of the greatest works of the master.

Chaloner Demands $7,000 More a Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—John Armstrong Chaloner (Charles), author of the famous query, "Where is my son?" will ask Justice Cohalan today to increase his yearly allowance from $17,000 to $24,000. He says he will do with $24,000 by "buying off my assistant secretary, a motor-boat and a groom."

Pope Nurses His Sick Chamberlain

ROME, Feb. 27.—Pope Pius astonished the Vatican household and was severely scolded by the papal physicians today because he insisted on nursing Mgr. Bressan, the Pope's chamberlain and one of his dearest friends, who is sick with typhoid. The Pope left the sick room last night only long enough for a few hours' sleep and was back again early today, declaring that he would remain by the bedside until Bressan is well.

Taft Is Wilson's Guest at Luncheon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—William Howard Taft, former President of the United States, was the guest of President Wilson at luncheon at the White House today. Mr. Taft's call at the White House here was the first since he left March 4 last. This is the first time, however, that President Wilson invited him to lunch with him.

Another Pure Food Son for Dr. Wiley

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is the father of another "pure food" baby. He weighs ten pounds and starts life in good health. Harvey Wiley, Jr., aged two, is tickled "nearly to death." Harvey Wiley, Sr., is even more so.

Margaret Wilson Guest in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, will be the guest of honor at a meeting of the St. Nicholas Park Neighborhood Association, at No. 163 West One Hundred and Thirty-Fifth street, this evening.

DICTATOR ASKS AID IN PUTTING DOWN REBELS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Today's developments in the Mexican crisis point more strongly than ever to the early necessity of intervention by the United States.

Huerta himself, in a communication to the State Department, suggests the co-operation of this country in restoring peace in Mexico, calling attention to "the absolute lack of respect by the rebels for all international usage."

George C. Carothers, as special agent of the United States, left El Paso for Chihuahua today to demand an inspection of the body of William S. Benton, the British subject, slain by Villa, the rebel leader.

Word came from Villa to the State Department today that he is willing to permit two American representatives, two British representatives, two physicians and relatives to view the body of Benton, but he still ignores the request of the United States for the surrender of the remains.

General Huerta, Mexico City dispatches say, has resorted to the seizure of young boys to fill his depleted army.

Proof of Outrages Suppressed by Bryan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Documentary evidence that the State Department has concealed charges

Boston Detective Sued for Divorce

Mrs. Carrie M. Brown of Saco, Me., formerly Carrie M. Abbott of Somerville, has instituted a divorce suit against her husband, George H. Brown, now a member of a Boston detective agency, according to dispatches today from Saco. Among other items to support her charge of cruel and abusive treatment Mrs. Brown says that her husband pawned her wedding ring and gold watch and the family rugs and silver.

Arrest Vender for Theft.

George Jones, fifty-one years old, of Washington street, a street fakir, was arrested today for the theft of four sets of cuff-links and a quantity of pocket combs from a five and ten cent store.

Arrest Boy of 15 on Drunk Charge

Freeman C. Perry, fifteen, a Roxbury boy, was arrested by the City Hall avenue station police on a charge of being intoxicated in Scollay square. The lad declared he had given a couple of older boys a quarter with which to buy whiskey. The police made an investigation to learn who furnished the liquor. The police said the boy was ill today of the effects of the drink.

Priest Gets Death Threat.

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., Feb. 27.—The Rev. Lucyan Bojnowski, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, has asked the police for assistance in finding some person who, in a letter, threatens to kill him.

Urge Eight-Hour Day for Women

"Eight hours a day for women" was the cry that went up from labor organizations from all parts of the State before the legislative Committee on Social Welfare which gave a hearing this morning at the State House on proposed legislation to this effect. New Bedford, Fall River and Lawrence figured most prominently in the support of the bill. Opposition of a vigorous nature came from the hotel men throughout the State, all of whom claimed that hotels should be exempt from the intended law.

PROOF OF MEXICAN OUTRAGES

made by Americans in Mexico which are more serious than the slaying of William S. Benton was obtained by the Boston AMERICAN today.

From indisputable proof it was ascertained:

1. Secretary of State Bryan has for months been in possession of a consular statement recounting the attack on two American girls, Lillie and Edna Gourd, near Tampico, but has done nothing.

2. Innumerable complaints have been filed against Consul Thomas Edwards, at Juarez, charging him with inefficiency, and the State Department has created the impression that George Carothers has taken charge in order that Edwards might not have to be removed.

3. Mexican soldiers who have killed and wounded Americans are now being fed at Fort Bliss and no effort has been made to demand punishment for the killings.

4. American consuls in Mexico have been given to understand that reports of atrocities committed on Americans are "considered unwelcome" in Washington.

The following affidavit by Matthew Gourd, formerly of Tampico, has been filed with a United Sttes Senator. It is signed by Clarence A. Miller, United States Consul at Tampico, and reads in part:

"On the night of July 26 my niece (Edna Gourd), my daughter and myself retired about 10 o'clock. At 12 o'clock we were awakened by three Mexicans, who knocked on the door and asked me to sell them some cigarettes.

"Supposing that I knew the Mexicans, I got the cigarettes and handed them over. One of the men gave me fifty cents. I turned to get the change for them and while my back was turned they sprang upon me, roped me and dragged me from the house.

"When I had been taken some distance away they demanded more money. I refused their request, and they then took me back to within twenty feet of the house, tied my hands behind me, threw the rope over the limb of a tree and drew it taut until my toes barely touched the ground.

"By this time my daughter and niece had dressed and had come to my assistance. When they saw me swinging from the tree limb they hurried back into the house to give the Mexicans what money we had on hand.

"One of the Mexicans grabbed Edna (my niece), but she eluded him and ran back into the room. Then Lillie (my daughter) came out on the gallery with the money, about fifty pesos in Mexican, more or less. Then another Mexican seized her and held her on the porch while Edna was resisting the other Mexican in the house. As nearly as I can learn she resisted about twenty minutes. Lillie fought until she fainted."

(The affidavit here gives the unpublishable details of the double crime while the father was striving to wrench himself free from the ropes which bound his arms behind him.)

Later the affidavit says:

"I immediately reported the matter to Consul Miller by letter and later in person. I also notified the Huerta government officials, who are stationed about seven miles from the house, furnishing them with descriptions of the men.

"Thus far the Mexican authorities have done absolutely nothing to avenge the crime. The only effort at capture was made by myself and some of my neighbors who followed the Mexicans.

"I am convinced that Americans in this country have no protection. I make this statement for the purpose of placing the facts as they occurred before the foreign residents of Mexico and in order to get some protection from my own government.

"I realized some time ago the danger Americans were in and was getting ready to send the girls out of the country, but was caught by the Mexicans before I could do so.

(Signed) "MATTHEW GOURD.

(Witnessed) "CLARENCE A. MILLER, United States Consul."

The above suppressed affidavit represents a typical case of murder, outrage and pillage of American citizens in Mexico, filed in the State Department.

Scores of American citizens have been wantonly murdered by Federal troops and by bandit bands calling themselves "Constitutionalists," according to the records verified by United States consuls.

These records have been kept secret by Secretary Bryan pursuant to President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting."

SAFER TO ROB AN AMERICAN.

It is safer to rob or even murder an American in Mexico than an Englishman or a German, because the English and German governments do not suppress news of outrages upon their citizens, but publish such acts very noisily and seek redress.

The case of Benton, the Englishman slain, is a case in point.

But Senators from the Southwestern States are now receiving protests from their constituents against the weakness of the administration. These protests are becoming more numerous daily.

MANY COMPLAINTS.

Innumerable complaints have been filed against Thomas Edwards, consul at Juarez, charging him with inefficiency, and the State Department has created the impression that George Carruthers has taken charge in order that Edwards might not have to be removed.

Mexican soldiers who have killed and wounded Americans are now being fed at Fort Bliss, and no effort has been made to demand punishment for the killings.

American consuls in Mexico have been given to understand that reports of atrocities committed on Americans are "considered unwelcome" in Washington.

A group of New Mexican business men headed by W. W. Turny, an officer of the Madeira Railroad Company, and W. H. Burgess, formerly vice-president of the New Mexican Bar Association, have complained to the State Department that Consul Edwards made two contradictory statements within twelve hours concerning the safety of Americans in Mexican territory.

Another affidavit of which the State Department was notified relates to an American, Jack Franklin, whose friends are fearful that he has been arrested appealed to Consul Edwards. They were told, they say, by the consul:

"Don't bother me. I can't do anything for him tonight. Every American who gets into trouble in Juarez always bothers me."

HUERTA ASKS U. S. TO CO-OPERATE IN RESTORING PEACE

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 27.—The co-operation of the United States in restoring peace in Mexico was asked today by President Huerta in a memorandum forwarded by Senor Rojas, Minister of Foreign Relation. The character of the memorandum gave rise to the question: Does Huerta want the United States to intervene?

The communication which is set forth by the killing of Benton, calls attention to the lifting of the embargo on arms into Mexico from the United States.

"We have been hampered by the action of the United States in putting down the bars so that arms and ammunition could be shipped in territory held by the Constitutionalists," the memorandum recites. "We feel that the time has come to call the attention of America and the world to the absolute lack of respect for all international usage exercised by the rebels.

"From this point of view it is believed that the Government of the United States will not place in doubt the right that belongs to Mexico to expect its collaboration in a work which it is doing in the interests of civilization, and likewise that it will fix its attention on the grave consequences that come from revoking the decree that prohibited until recently the exportation of arms.

"This government expects to comply with its high duty to humanity, and with the functions of a representative State that forms part of international society by soliciting, by means of this note, reflection on our neighboring country regarding the sad consequences which the arming of rebels who do not respect life, honor or property has brought and will continue to bring."

BODY OF BENTON LOCATED IN CEMETERY IN CHIHUAHUA CITY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The body of W. S. Benton has been located in the largest cemetery of Chihuahua.

Consul Letcher reported from Chihuahua today that while no definite time has been set for the examination of the body, is probably will take place within a few days.

Villa, Letcher added, persists in his refusal to permit the body to be removed from Chihuahua. The rebel general demands that Benton's body be returned to the cemetery immediately after the examination, otherwise he will not permit the examination.

Secretary Bryan telegraphed Letcher to accept Villa's offer "provided no better proposition can be obtained." The secretary asserted, however, that the government had not ceased its efforts to obtain possession of the body.

Consul Edwards at Juarez reported today that Gustave Rauch, the German American arrested by Villa on the charge of being a spy, had not been in jail in Juarez since February 15. It has been found that Rauch was removed from Juarez on that date and taken to some point in the interior. Villa persists in his statement that he knows nothing whatever of Rauch's present whereabouts.

OLD MAN DYING; ROBBED, THEN BEATEN IN HOME

Samuel Capolovitz, seventy-five years old, who lives alone in the basement at No. 82 Summer street, Chelsea, was probably fatally beaten by two burglars and robbed of $5.65 that was under the pillow he was sleeping on. His assailants overlooked several hundred dollars in another part of the room.

After beating the old man about his head the two burglars tied his hands and feet with a clothesline they brought with them and left the old man in a dying condition.

Barney Miller, who lives at No. 84 Summer street, next door to the basement, heard cries for help in the Yiddish language. Miller called on Harry Sifkind and Samuel Ginsberg and they searched through the building and found Capolovits on the floor in the basement.

The police were notified and they are searching the locality for two persons who are acquainted with the habits of the old man.

TAFT BEFORE CONGRESS FOR COURT REFORM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Former President Taft made his first appearance as an expert on law before a congressional committee today when he testified before the House Judiciary committee on the reformation of law court procedure, and remedies for congestion of federal court dockets.

The former president was introduced to the committee by Chairman Clayton.

"I had some doubt about the wisdom of coming here," said the former President, "not because I did not have confidence in the committee, but because I thought if it were noised about the country that I was in favor of the bill to simplify judicial procedure a great many persons would be against the bill just because I said I was still right."

Mr. Taft commented upon the slowness of legal procedure in this country and asserted there is no country where judicial procedure is so far advanced as in England.

"I do not think it is necessary for me to say that I am opposed to the recall of judges and the recall of judicial decisions," he said. "I think both would break down the judicial system, but there is legislation which may be enacted for the benefit of the courts and the public and removing the final objection to the administration of justice. I would remove it as far as possible from the judiciary the power of patronage. I would not care if you went so far as to provide that the clerks of courts shall be appointed by the executive under civil service rules and not by the judges of the courts. I am in favor of a life judiciary, for an elective judiciary would be weakening, and if you take the appointment of clerks and other court employes, with the possible exception of messengers out of the hands of the judges it will be a help to the court and remove at least one of the temptations of the judiciary. I am not criticising the whole of the judiciary, for I appointed about thirty per cent. of it, and they are high-class men, but I merely want to suggest to the committee the steps Congress might take to remove temptation from men who are human and to prevent, perhaps, so much criticism of the judicial system."

J. A. GALLIVAN IN RACE FOR CURLEY SEAT

Street Commissioner James A. Gallivan announced today his candidacy for Congress in the Twelfth District, to succeed to the unexpired term of Mayor Curley. In a statement which ends with the assertion "that he is going to win," Mr. Gallivan said:

"Having had considerable experience in public affairs, I do not hesitate to say that I feel I could serve Boston with some credit to myself and profit to the city. I have the friendship of every Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts (of course, I am not claiming their political support, because that would be going a little bit too far). I am, also, I think, fortunate in having a close personal acquaintance-ship with Mr. Tumulty, private secretary to President Wilson. Those who know me need not the assurance from myself that if successful I will not be a chair warmer, neither will I become a nuisance by too frequent attempts to command the Speaker's eye."

ALMA GLUCK TO WED ZIMBALIST, HER VIRTUOSO

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 27.—Alma Gluck, the beautiful young grand opera prima donna and concert singer, announced today that she is to sacrifice, if need be, her career for the home, by becoming the bride of Efren Zimbalist, the Russian violinist, who is now in his native country on a concert tour. The wedding will be performed in June, in London, at the home of the late Josepa Fels, whose protege the young virtuoso was.

Few opera singers have had such a rapid rise to fame as Alma Gluck. She was the young wife of "David Belasco's double" when she went on the stage and became famous over night. Fame perched upon her brow in 1911 at the initial performance of Massenet's "Werther," at the New Theatre, in New York. She at once became a prominent member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and since that time has often charmed Boston's critical audiences.

But with Mme. Gluck's rise to fame came whisperings of discord between the beautiful young diva and her white-haired, distinguished husband. Friends said it was a case of drifting apart that the singer, flushed with success after her long years of musical training, had refused to sacrifice her career for her home. A separation and divorce soon followed, and Mme. Gluck was left free to continue her career.

It was not until last year that it was apparent that romance had again entered into the young singer's life. During the Summer vacation Mme. Gluck and Zimbalist visited Switzerland together and were guests of Mme. Sembrich. They returned to the United States on the same ship, and when asked if they were to wed, said "No, it might interfere with our artistic careers." The announcement of today, however, indicates that love has triumphed over art.

It was Mme. Gluck who set the musical world aflame a few months ago by declaring that American girls risked their honor by going to Europe to study. Walter Damrosch and John C. Freund, editor of Musical America, bore her out in her warning to young girls. The question was debated pro and con from one end of the world to the other. Henry Russell, director of the Boston Opera House, was one of those who called the charges "mostly rot."

SOCIETY FIGHTS MISS TANNER'S BILL FOR TAXIS

WORCESTER, Feb. 27.—Following that the claim of Miss Virginia Tanner of Boston, to recover for expenses incurred in drilling the young people of Millbury for the pageant of "Odyssey" last year is unreasonable and unjust, the District Nursing society of Worcester has engaged Attorney Charles B. Perry to fight the case.

Mr. Perry said the Nursing Society objects to paying 50 cents each way for the carrying of a suitcase to and from the railroad station every night. Miss Tanner made a trip from Boston to Millbury.

It also objects to paying for the expenses of the plaintiff's mother on several visits she made to plaintiff while she was in Millbury.

SVENSON OF TUFTS GIVEN RENO DIVORCE

Professor Carl G. Svenson, head of the department of mechanical drawing at Tufts College, has been granted a decree of divorce from Ethel D. Svenson of No. 107 Sumner street, Newton Centre, according to dispatches received today.

Friends of the couple say they lived happily until Professor Svenson took his mother to live with him. A short time after the couple separated.

Professor Svenson told the court he was married three months after their marriage, and went to live with her parents.

The New "Untailored" Suits for Misses

Soft, unstiffened shoulders, dainty embroidered collars and vests, short bloused jackets, kimono sleeves and sashed belts literally "dress up" the new suits, for they make one think of dresses.

The "Tassel" Suit is $25—it is worth $32.50.

Cord trimmings, tiny tassels, laced buttons, and embroidered collar. In smart checks and Tokio crepe.

$16.75 for New Suits worth more

The type of suit young folk are asking for. Simple, with good new lines—straight Raglan sleeve and flared tunic skirt (with hidden pleats for fullness). Serges, poplins and checks.

Copied from a Jeanne Lanvin Suit for $35

Lanvin makes the most youthful suits in Paris. They are simple, they are artistically built, and they are refreshingly new.

This little suit that we have adopted from one of her best models has a "handkerchief" tie, "marble" buttons that hang on cords, and quaint high sashed back that opens on one side. In spring checks and serge.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

Misses' Undermuslins

CHEMISES—Embroidered "convent" edges, narrow "batting embroideries," or double-thread lace trimmings. Some are very simple, for the girl who does not want the French garment, but something quite as tub-worthy. 98c and $1.50.

SLIPS—One of the newest has a fitted "brassiere" top of embroidery. Simple, or beribboned and laced. $1.50 to $3.95. Messaline Slips for $3.95.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

$5 for Misses' Men's-Wear Serge Skirts

A material unusual at this price. A practical, simple skirt, new for the flaring hip tunic. In blue and black. $5.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

The New Pompadour Silk Blouses for Misses

"The Guillotine"—Pompadour crepe de chine with laced girdle and cuffs of white taffeta. Sleeves, too, appear to be laced in. New wide neck, with upstanding taffeta roll edge. $12.

"L'Artiste"—A flowered crepe blouse that is very loose and smart and "sloppy." Taffeta rolling collar. Laced front and cuffs. $8.

Voile Blouses at $2

Trimmed with cream Venise lace, that wears a long time and is very pretty besides. Long shoulder—yoke back and front.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

New Taffeta and Crepe Dancing Dresses for Misses

Taffeta Frocks—with "pouf" panniers and bustle backs. Show the new neck line; low in front, high and standoffish in back. Skelched. $18.50.

Taffeta and Chiffon Dresses—with picot edged double hip ripples. Upstanding taffeta neck ruffle. $15.

$7.50 for Misses' $12.50 Wool Crepe Dresses

Double rippled tunic, silk-bowed girdle, square cloth buttons, embroidered crepe collar and cuffs. In Hague, sepia, Tango and navy.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

New Plaid Gingham Dresses for Girls of 6 to 14

$3.95—Fine Parkhill gingham, with pique collars, picot edged. Cut bias or straight. Button from neck to hem.

$4.50—Simple dresses with low wide belt of cloth or suede. Collar and cuffs of embroidery or pique.

(Filene's—Fourth Floor)

The New Spring Coats for Misses

The eponge coat sketched is typical of what girls will wear this spring. Loose, short and flaring, with swagger sagging belt across the back. New high parted collar of duvetyne.

For Women

Unusually Good Spring Suits for Women at $16.75

Fine men's wear serge bloused coat, with straight back and new "cowl" collar of Roman stripe silk. New rippled hip ruffle on the skirt. $16.75.

(Filene's—Fifth Floor)

$15 for Women's New Crepe de Chine Dresses

Crossed-in-front waist drape; deep flaring hip tunic. Open in front, with wired lace collar. $15.

FIANCEE SEEKS ASYLUM DEATH SECRET IN TOMB

Mrs. Nettie M. Saunders of Lowell, who was engaged to marry Frank Lazelle, the Lowell engineer whose death at the McLean Hospital in Waverly is to be investigated, told for the first time today her reasons for believing her fiance's death due to violence.

Mrs. Saunders declared that when she visited him last week at Waverly, Lazelle had told her of having a fight with an attendant as a result of the engineer's being transferred to the "hospital dungeon." She said Lazelle was in the best of health apparently when she saw him, and that when she was informed that he had died of scarlet fever, her suspicions were aroused.

Mrs. Saunders has retained former Mayor O'Donnell of Lowell to take charge of the investigation. She herself is seeking a power of attorney so that she may have the body examined. She said today:

"Certain circumstances in Frank's death seem peculiar, to say the least. He told me a week ago that he had been in a mixup with one of the attendants on that same day. His complaint of having been transferred from a comfortable ward, where he was paying $25 a week to the hospital dungeon, where hopeless cases are confined.

"'I am locked up now with a lot of nuts, whereas I was assured I would be confined with sane patients,' Frank told me.

"He said the reason for transferring him was because he had tried to escape from a window so he could take a walk and get some fresh air. He told me in the dungeon it was all iron bars, and there was nothing to occupy his mind. He had to walk up and down, and becoming desperate he took the slats off his bed and tried to force his way out. This resulted in a fight with an attendant, he said.

"He seemed very much better than he had been. There was no evidence of any sickness."

Mrs. Blickensderfer Quits Suffragists

HARTFORD, Ct., Feb. 27.—It is learned here that Mrs. W. J. Blickensderfer, wife of the millionaire typewriter manufacturer, who has been a warm supporter of the cause of woman suffrage for years, has resigned from the Connecticut Woman Suffrage Association, giving as her reason her disapproval of the attitude of the association with reference to the case of Bessie J. Walker, old, under sentence of death at Wethersfield for the murder of her husband. Mrs. Blickensderfer opposes the execution of Mrs. Wakefield.

Racquet Club War Over Mrs. Lytton

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—A woman has at last broken through a strong line of masculine opposition and been entertained at the exclusive Racquet Club, and as a result a civil war is on and old club members are taking sides.

The woman to pierce the mysteries of a club that heretofore was closed to all but a few was Judith Lytton of Surrey, England, wife of the Hon. Neville S. Lytton, the racquet champion of Great Britain.

OH DI MI! GABY BARRED FROM COPLEY-PLAZA

Gaby Deslys has been barred from the Copley-Plaza.

Oh, yes, it's a fact, for doesn't the hotel itself say so?

And it's all because of Henrietta, so the hotel management says.

Well, well——

Yes, Mademoiselle Gaby telegraphed from Kansas City for a reservation at the C-P. She wanted a whole suite—the most royal to be had.

"Elevator," wired back the hotel. "The greatest." Why, Henrietta, of course. The C-P put it right up to Henrietta. Yes, sirree, they did, and they said so long as Gaby had the said Henrietta with her, she—the said Gaby—would never set foot in the said hostlery.

Henrietta? Oh, yes. 'Tis Gaby's pet biddy—biddy's last name being Hen. They do say Mademoiselle takes the hen along so she can get a strictly fresh egg every live-long day.

The C-P says it won't stand for Henrietta for a minute.

What does Gaby say? Oh, maybe that wouldn't be polite to print—maybe.

CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With us, children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physics simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little insides are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind, with contempt.

Wife Ostracized

Mrs. Joseph Golaski, of Riverhead, N. J., gave birth to a sixteen-pound baby boy. The youngster is two feet high and is perfectly developed.

Because her husband would not provide her with a rocking chair other than the kind that "rocks both ways," Mrs. John Gray, of Pittsburgh, has sued for divorce.

William J. Bryan, of Philadelphia, who is no relative of the Secretary of State, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, because he did not stick to grape juice.

The 400 delegates to the convention of the United Mine Workers of Illinois refused to attend a theatre performance at Peoria because the tickets given them bratis bore no union label.

Charged with pulling out a handful of her husband's hair, Mrs. Will, of Passaic, N. J., was sentenced to live apart from him for one month.

Called in by Henry Baumgarten, whose wife, Sarah, had been overcome by gas, Patrolman Philip Wagner, of New York, pried open the woman's jaws, breaking five teeth, drew out her tongue and began manipulating her arms. His action saved the woman's life.

SEES RAILROAD PLOT TO KILL BURNETT BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—That Atlantic shipping and railroad interests are making a strong attack on the clause in the Burnett immigration bill, which prohibits the payment of rebates to steamship companies by railroads for immigrant traffic, was the charge made today by Representative Manahan of Minnesota.

Mr. Manahan said he received his information from Senator Johnson of Maine and added:

"Representatives of these steamship companies, I am told, are at work to secure the amendment of the bill so as to save for companies this money which heads of the companies admitted in our hearings was the money they used to work up the immigration business abroad. The steamship concerns are forbidden to advertise for immigrants, but the railroads in this country make up a common fund, allowing from $1 to $4 per head for each immigrant brought in, according to the mileage involved, and this money is sent abroad to the men who represent the steamship lines."

QUICK AND SURE STOMACH DOCTOR

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Sourness in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes. If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Rheumatism IN THE HIPS and Down the Legs---That's Sciatica.

Those sharp darting pains that characterize sciatic rheumatism should be treated in the blood. And by using S. S. S. you get entirely rid of it.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain out the impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys and bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid secretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centres that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is partly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. acts on no sensation, but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood and as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. S. S. S. is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If you've a case to treat and you desire special information, write to The Swift Specific Co., 310 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

THE LUCKY SIXPENCE

The coin of the realm is the foundation of a nation's credit and responsibility, and the world over, from the burning sands of the Desert to the icy shores of Greenland, THE LUCKY SIXPENCE, like the coin of the United States, receives full faith and credit.

The coin which forms the basis of this advertisement is not a trademark or a brand of TAILORING—it represents a POLICY adopted a quarter of a century ago—the maintenance of an absolute standard of merit.

We only promise that which we know we can deliver. We are opposed to the "oft-used" lure of offering an article worth $60.00 for $13.50. No man, no, not in the most remote corner of His Majesty's Colonies, would ever believe that an article worth $60.00 would be offered for $13.50 unless there was something woefully wrong with the article, or with the offer itself.

IT IS THE NEW TARIFF AND OUR BRITISH-AMERICAN SYSTEM WHICH GIVES YOU THE CHOICE OF THE FINEST FOREIGN WOOLENS IN SUITS TO ORDER AT

Suit $13.50 To Order

The same garments which sell in our British Shops for £2 16s 6d.
The Best POPULAR PRICE MADE-TO-ORDER SUIT the world can produce.

Our stock includes the choicest imported cheviots, worsteds, cashmeres, serges, IRISH TWILLS and SCOTCH TWEEDS, as well as the FINEST DOMESTIC WOOLENS. Our tailoring is the kind that has made ENGLISH TAILORING famous.

We really don't need SALESMAKERS to induce your trade. Look at what we offer. You are the best judge.

To every customer we present a handsome Coin purse, enclosing THE LUCKY SIXPENCE, wrapped in the flag of this great and glorious country. Carry the coin and be ever fortunate.

WE ASK FOR A FAIR CHANCE. WE WILL DO THE HONORABLE WITH YOU.

DR. MUCK BUYS $30,000 HOME IN THE FENWAY

Dr. Karl Muck, the famous conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has purchased the four-story brick residence at No. 50 Fenway, near the Park entrance, Back Bay, for a home during his stay in Boston. The property is one of the finest in the Fens section and is rated at $30,000.

"I prefer owning my own home to renting," said the Herr Director today, when asked if he planned to make his permanent home in Boston. "You see I have three more years with the Symphony and during that period I intend to live in the Fenway house. Of course, I couldn't say what I might do when my contract is up.

"This Summer I shall go abroad. In July and August I shall conduct at the Bayreuth Festival, and after that I shall go to my Summer home in Austria."

No. 50 Fenway has 5,800 square feet of land which is taxed for $15,000. As conductor of the Symphony Dr. Muck is paid an annual salary of $18,000.

200 Protest Sunday Show in Roslindale

Mayor Curley's plan for allowing motion picture theatres to give Sunday night shows was opposed at City Hall at a public hearing on Charles J. Gorman's petition for a license at the Roslindale Theatre Hall, No. 4,255 Washington street, when more than 200 men and women voiced their objections.

Summer Street Fire Causes $500 Damage

Fire, early today, caused a damage of $500 on the top floor of the five story brick building, at No. 71 and 73 Summer street, occupied by W. W. Whitaltip, dealers in trunks and bags and the Excelsior Umbrella Company. The firemen were summoned by an automatic alarm, reinforced by the heat.

Students Plan Lecture.

Boston College evening class students plan a lecture meeting March 20 to raise funds for the proposed faculty building on University Heights, Newton. John D. Crosby will speak on the "Soul of Erin."

DON'TS FOR DRIVERS

Traffic Chief Gives Advice TIME CHEAPER THAN LIFE

Don't get it into your head that you have the sole use of the street.

Don't grind the wheel of your car on the curbstone when you turn corners. This gives the pedestrian caught off the curb no chance of escape.

Don't drive within eight feet of a car taking on or discharging passengers.

Don't fail to obey the law to the letter. That's the best way to get it repealed if it's an unjust law.

You might lose a minute, but on the other hand you might gain a minute and take a life that would bother you as long as you live.

In Paris a man that is struck by an automobile gets arrested. It's not so here.

A lot of chauffeurs are afflicted with American speed mania. They think the streets are arenas for chariot races.

A touch of chivalry would prevent a great many accidents. A driver can be as much a gentleman as a bishop.

—Don'ts for auto drivers by Inspector Myers, New York chief of traffic squad.

Offers Reward for $1,000 Lost in Street

Somebody has lost a $1,000 bill somewhere between the North Station and Milk street, and through Attorney Daniel J. Kiley of No. 6 Beacon street, has offered a reward for its return. Although Kiley has advertised the loss he refuses to make public the name of the owner.

Mrs. Gouraud Off to Desert on Camel

PARIS, Feb. 27. — Mrs. Jackson Gouraud, who left Paris recently with the object of gathering material for her $5,000 prize fete, telegraphs to the Paris Bureau of the AMERICAN that she has hired a caravan and starts today for the Egyptian desert on camel back.

POLICEMAN IN BRAINTREE RAID CASE RESIGNS

Patrolman John D. Wales of Weymouth, who over a month ago was tried on charges growing out of the raid last Fall on the Cedarcrest Outing Club of Braintree, has sent his resignation to Chief of Police Butler.

The same Board of Selectmen which heard the charges against Walsh and found him guilty on three of the five counts will consider his resignation at its meeting Monday. Patrolman Walsh, as the result of the hearing was suspended without pay till February 3.

Following the raid Walsh was charged with being away from his post on the night of November 13 and 14; being under the influence of liquor, being at the Cedarcrest Club on the nights of November 13 and 14 and demanding money; being at the club in violation of the police rules and being in a fight with Patrolman Henry Dugan of Braintree.

The Selectmen, after an all-day public hearing, found him guilty on the charges of being away from his post.

Bishop Blames Stage for Suicides

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—Bishop Rhinelander said at a Lenten service: "No wonder suicide is becoming popular and fashionable, if the miserable ramblings of lustful instincts that we see nowadays in the theatres and on moving picture films are our ultimate conception of moral truth."

GRAY WIGS NEXT.

Ruffles for Men Predicted. BUSTLE WINNING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—White and gray wigs have arrived for American women of fashion. They are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Giddings, just in from Paris.

"Gray wigs greatly enhance a woman's beauty," said Mr. Giddings. "The purple, rainbow and colored wigs will never be popular. It would not surprise me to see men wearing ruffles before the end of the season.

"Women's hats will be small and worn over the eyes. The bustle is coming in with a vengeance."

Hardware Convention.

The New England Hardware Dealers' Association will hold its annual convention and exhibition at the Copley-Plaza and in Horticultural Hall on March 3, 4 and 5. Mayor Curtis is expected to welcome the delegates and Governor Walsh will speak at the banquet, which closes the convention.

IF YOU ARE NERVOUS

or worried or vexed at trifles, your vital forces are slowly but surely deteriorating.

Scott's Emulsion overcomes nervousness better than anything else because its nourishing force enriches the blood and stimulates its flow to all the tissues and bathes the tiny nerve cells in the rich plasma by which they are nourished.

Shun alcoholic substitutes that stimulate and stupefy. Take Scott's Emulsion for your nerves. Its nutritive power is the greatest help that nature affords.

CLOCK PUZZLE ANSWERS PILE IN EVERY HOUR

Time is flying. There is no stop to the great interest being taken in the AMERICAN'S clock puzzle. You would better hustle in order to keep pace with thousands of others who have already sent in their answer. It is very simple. All you have to do is to figure it out. Get busy—here is the puzzle.

"If a calendar clock which indicates the second, minute, hour and the day of the month shows the correct time at 5 p.m. on Saturday, January 17, and gains 90 minutes daily, what will be the correct time when the clock indicates that it is 5 p. m. on February 17?"

Here are some of the answers:

Anthony Marini, No. 195 West street, West Quincy, 10:10 p. m.; William Silverstein, No. 24 Almont street, Malden, 4:14:59 p. m.; Sam O'Connell, No. 127 Pine street, Holyoke, 11:52:08 1-8 a. m.; Leon Mahoney, Boston Light Vessel No. 54, East Boston, 11:50 p. m.; May M. "EUGENICS A JOKE"

Professor Hits at Founder

"IDEA IS DELUSION"

Eugenics appeal to men who are morally tong-haired and to women who are intellectually short-haired.

The future of the human race can be enhanced only through character building by individuals and courageous adherence to ideals by nations.

The movement is a joke. Ninety per cent. of what is attributed to heredity is merely a matter of environment. Even Galton, founder of the eugenic movement, was deluded through overlooking the influence of civilization on man.

—Professor A. L. Kroeber of the department of anthropology of the University of California.

Urged Compulsory British Army Term

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A deputation consisting of Field Marshals Roberts, Woods and Grenfell and Admirals Noel and Seymour called upon Premier Asquith today and petitioned him to work in favor of a law making military service for men compulsory.

CHILDREN SEE PLAY AS GUESTS OF AMERICAN

Through the courtesy of William Woods, manager of the Boston Theatre, and William A. Brady, who owns "Way Down East," hundreds of children are the guests of the AMERICAN this week at several performances of the fine old New England play. The children who are being entertained at "Way Down East" are those who are being taught gardening by Mrs. W. F. Eastwood of No. 567 Beacon street. The love that Mrs. Eastwood's young pupils have for flowers makes the beautiful country scenes of "Way Down East" especially attractive to them. As well as the children, the mothers of many of the little ones are included in the treat of seeing the play.

The children selected for these little outings into the drama are from the Elizabeth Peabody House and the Vacant Lot Garden Children of Roxbury. The Mothers' Club of the Jamaica Plain Neighborhood House are also being entertained at performances of "Way Down East."

Committee Favors the Literacy Test

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The Senate Immigration Committee planned today to complete its consideration of the Burnett bill as it passed the House next week, and to report it to the Senate. Though the committee has not voted definitely on the question of retaining the literacy question in the bill, the majority favor it and the formal vote on the provision is expected to carry.

We Promise You Relief from All Stomach Troubles—Or Your Money Back

We honestly believe we have the best remedy in the world for indigestion and dyspepsia. We urge you to try it at our risk. If it doesn't relieve you—as we feel sure it will—we'll give back your money without a word. You know us—your family druggist. You know we wouldn't dare recommend anything we didn't know about, nor dare to break a promise. Therefore, when we recommend any remedy it is because we believe it to be better than any other to relieve the ailment for which it is made, and when we prove our faith in it and our sincerity toward you by promising to give back your money if it doesn't relieve you and in every way satisfy you, you have no possible excuse for doubt or hesitation.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets

are, we honestly believe, the best remedy made for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all other Stomach Ills

We Know They're Good

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, in addition to other ingredients, contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two great digestive aids used by the entire medical profession. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check the heartburn and distress, stimulate a healthy secretion of the gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich red blood, and thereby into flesh, bone and muscle. They relieve stomach distress promptly, and, used regularly for a short time, tend to restore the stomach to a comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They aid greatly to promote regular bowel action.

Delays Are Dangerous

Don't neglect indigestion, for it frequently leads to all sorts of ills and complications. The pain and discomfort is not the most unfortunate part. The fact that when the stomach is not acting right, the material needed to repair the wastes that are constantly taking place in the body is not being given to the blood either in the proper condition or fast enough is far more serious. Nothing will cause more trouble than an unhealthy stomach. The blues, debility, lack of strength and energy, constipation, biliousness, headaches and scores of other serious ailments result from the failure of the stomach to properly do its work.

You Risk No Money

Our willingness to have you use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets entirely at our risk proves our faith in them. We always sell them this way, and it is because we know that they have greatly benefited scores of sufferers to whom we have sold them. There's no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. You needn't sign anything. Your word is enough for us. We know that when they help you you will consider it money well spent even if they had cost you ten times as much. If they don't help you, the money you paid for them is yours, and we want you to have it.

Red Tag Sale

Tomorrow night will bring to a close one of the most satisfying Red Tag Sales we have held. As satisfying from the amount of business done and the number of new customers it brought us, as from the number of friends we feel it has made for the store. Values—straight, honest values, such as we tell about below—are what gave us this result—and for the closing days we offer some of the most convincing bargains of the whole sale.

The object of this Red Tag Sale is to clean up all odds and ends of winter merchandise. We let the original white price ticket remain on the goods to show the former selling price—the new cut price is marked on a Red Tag, which is also placed on the goods. This proves the bargain strength of each item beyond dispute.

Stories about Oddeblk

Playwright Walter Solves World's Greatest Problem

Eugene Walter—the ekatch shows him to be a man on pretty good terms with himself—says that one, and perhaps the most important, reason for the high cost of living, is in men's laundry bills.

"Formerly men wore detachable and reversible cuffs. Now they are out of date! One shirt a week and a pair of reversible cuffs, and a man was well dressed!"

This was before Walter became a playwright and made $60,000 a year.

A Hit.

In the midst of a dramatic performance by a Boston school class recently a nine-year-old girl came on the stage for her first appearance." She was, of course, quite a bit flustered and, as the plot began to thicken, became so excited that she fell off the stage.

"Are you hurt, little girl?" inquired the principal, as he tenderly assisted her to her feet.

"Not at all," she replied, "but I made quite a bit, didn't I?"

When Beatrice Herford Talks

The hostess at "An English Party":

"I CAN'T say I like some of your American singers; they sing so very loud. It may be all very well in America, but it seems a little out of place in a drawing-room."

"I'm so glad you've come, Miss Padley; Miss Leach is here, and I know she doesn't know any one, and I know you don't, and I thought you could have a nice time together."

From "The Frivolous Side":

"THE doctor on the steamer was awfully nice, but mamma didn't like him. She was very snubby to him, and the purser told us he belonged to a very nice family. Well, his father's a clergyman. Of course, that's not swell at all, but it's perfectly respectable."

From "At the Box Office":

"LET me see, I is ten rows back, isn't it? Nine rows! How's that?

"Oh, you don't have a row I. Well, that's rather a good idea; it makes it nearer. I should think they'd leave out more letters."

My Word!

Slang, Cockney, the Scots' is something of a story teller off the stage, as well as on. It is responsible for this:

"Two friends, a Welshman and a Scotchman, happened to be lunching together recently in a certain restaurant. The latter kept turning around to see if his hat and coat remained safely on the peg where he had left them.

"'You're a suspicious chap,' said his friend at last. 'Who do you think is going to walk in here and steal our coats?'

"'Can't say,' replied Scotty, 'but I'll take good care nobody gets mine; yours went ten minutes ago.'"

While entertaining some friends at the Green Room Club in London Mr. Cameron was giving a vivid description of the electric advertisements used by all the theatres along the Great White Way. When he had finished and was satisfied that he had done full justice to American advertising methods, one of his friends, a rather bored young Englishman, said: "My word, awfully interesting, but doesn't it make the theatre frightfully conspicuous?"

The Dear Fool

The Story of the Love of a Woman of 40 for a Boy of 22

Novelized by

From the Broadway play so it is, now playing at the Gaiety Theatre—copyright 1914, by Harper's Weekly Service.

"BUT your Aunt Ethel may require all she's got to fulfil her duty in that state of life to which it has pleased God to call her. I beg your pardon, I didn't mean to make a silly remark like that," said Eggy, quite as man to man.

"Do you mean to say, Eggy, that she'll cut us off with a shilling like grandfather did?" asked Bill.

"I shouldn't be surprised," said Eggy quietly.

"My hat—and I shan't be able to help much. My pay in the navy's simply measly—at least, it's going to be when I get level—I'm dashed if I don't," concluded the boy ruefully.

"I know."

"And mummy's only got about five hundred a year."

"Four hundred and ninety," corrected Eggy with great clarity as to the extra fifty dollars.

Bill was seriously impressed and harassed by the problem in finance the situation presented. His fresh colored boyish face knit, on grave lines and he took off his cap the better to ruffle the brown hair over a brain that seemed to need a bit of stimulating.

"After she's paid for Jack's schooling she'll have simply nothing."

"It's a problem, isn't it?" asked Eggy, thinking about the solution of the problem he would so happily suggest—if he only dared.

"Jack and I will have to put our heads together and evolve something."

"That's about the size of it, said Sir Egbert.

"I don't suppose Jack'll do much evolving these days. He'll have to go pretty slow for a bit."

"Yes—you'll evolve a bit on your own," said the man to the boy—and its truth he was beginning to evolve a bit on his own.

The thing to do would be to invent something—that's the way to make money."

The boy raised his honest blue eyes to the man who was so dearly his friend. What a jolly quartet they [illegible] splendid little lads to help a bit further on to fine manhood. What a little Hittie Betty was to have managed to bring them up so faithful and kind. Why, here was twelve-year-old Bill planning to take care of her already. She had proved her right and title to fine motherhood—before she had made the one blunder that made her question her own fitness for anything but sackcloth and ashes. Then Eggy realized that his friend Bill was waiting for an answer—and—"Oh, you mean—to pretend to youth, you never belittle it by failing to attend properly to a conversation.

"It's a very good way—but not very many people can do it," said Eggy, bringing his attention back with a jerk.

"Oh, I'm pretty good at it. It seems to come easy to me," and Bill with engaging self-appreciation—"sometimes I seem to have heaps of ideas—and other times my head seems all dried up as it were."

"That's the case with all creative minds, but fortunately the suspension of mental activity is only temporary," Sir Egbert smiled quizzically. "Now, what you ought to do is to go down immediately to a place on the cool shed all by yourself and stick at it."

"I can't invent things when other people are about—can you?" asked Bill in a very comradely tone.

"No, that's why I suggest the cool shed."

"You want me to clear out?" asked the boy.

"Observant youth!"

"Well, I think I'll just go and think over a few striking ideas. If mummy wants me—or Jack—you might explain I'm busy—but not in the cool shed, dear Eggy. Privacy, you know—and no uninvited interruptions when you're inventing."

BILL GETS BUSY.

Bill advanced to the door.

"If anything happens out of my brain I'll come back and let you know," he said with childish assurance that his message would be welcome. "Hello, Mums!" he added as Betty came hastily into the room. "Isn't Aunt Ethel a knockout? Marchioness of—where? Oh, Archibald!"

"Go to Jackie, will you, Bill? He was asking for you, but I told him you'd gone fishing."

"Money-making is the drudgery of life," complains the Secretary of State. "No one can afford to devote all his time to drudgery. We must try to put something in as well as to take something out."

Inasmuch as it is the people's time the Secretary devotes to money-making, he cannot be charged with subjecting himself to criticism.

"I shall go to my grave a poor workaday slave
To interest and discounts and loans.
I would give a whole lot for a vine-covered cot
And a diet of corned beef and beans;
And I frequently sob for a truck driver's job
With its honest blue jumper and jeans."

"All right, sir," I said, "you can go right ahead,
It is likely that State street can spare you.
Go hop on your truck, and here's wishing you luck!"
But he haughtily answered: "How dare you!"

"I AM sick of the strife of political life,"
The Senator said with a sigh.
"Its tricks and its craft and its greed and its graft
Make existence a hideous lie.
I have done myself wrong thus to toil my life long
On a Senator's starvation wage.
I long to return to my business and earn
The money I'll need in old age."

"Pray why don't you try to get out, then?" said I.
"There are plenty of good men about
Who would like to get in." But he said with a grin
"Say, what do you mean—me get out!"

The Woman Thou Gavest Me

HALL CAINE'S GREATEST STORY

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL
FOURTH PART
I FALL IN LOVE

Sixty-Fourth Chapter

BY the time he returned from his room I had ten served in my boudoir, and while we sat facing the open door to the balcony he told me about his visit to his old school; how at the dinner on the previous night the Principal had proposed his health, and after the lads had sung "Forty Years In" he had told them yarns about his late expedition until they made the dark bliss of indrawn breath which is peculiar to boys when they are excited; how they had followed him to his bedroom as if he had been the Pied Piper of Hamelin and questioned him and clambered over him until driven off by the house-master; and now, finally, before he was out of bed this morning the smallest scholar in the junior house, a tiny little cherub with the face of his mother, had come knocking at his door to ask if he wanted a cabin boy.

Martin laughed as if he had been a boy himself (which he always was and always will be) while telling me these stories, and I laughed too, though with a certain tremor, for I was constantly remembering my resolution and feeling afraid to be too happy.

After tea we went out on to the balcony, and leaned side by side over the crumbling stone balustrade to look at the lovely landscape—loveliest when the sun is setting on it—with the flower-garden below and the [illegible] heather and gorse and with a winding white path lying over it like the lash of a whip until it dipped down to the sea.

"It's a beautiful old world, though, isn't it?" said Martin.

"Isn't it?" I answered, and we looked into each other's eyes and smiled.

Then we heard the slush of the garden hose, and looking down saw an old man watering the geraniums.

"Sakes alive! It's Tommy the Mate," cried Martin, and leaning out on the balcony he went leaping down the stone stairway to greet his old comrade.

"God bless me!" said Tommy. "Let me have a right look at ye. Yes, yes, it's himself, for sure."

A little sad tender memories floated up to me from my childhood at seeing those two together again, with Martin's arm resting on the old man's shoulders above the old man's Glengarry cap.

"You've been over the highways of the sea, farther than Franklin himself, they're telling me," said Tommy, and when Martin, laughing inwardly, admitted that he had been further south at all events, the old sailor said:

"Well, well. Think of that now. But wasn't I always telling the schoolhouse what you'd be doing some day?"

Then with a "Come" of his "starboard eye" in my direction he said:

"You haven't got a woman yet though? . . . No, I thought not. You're like myself, boy—there's not many of them sorts in for you."

A LUMINOUS NIGHT.

After that, and a more unflagging look my way, the old man talked about me, still calling me the "ill mistress" and saying they were putting a power of gold on my fingers, but he would be burning candles to the miracles of God to see the color of it in my cheeks, too.

"She's a plant that doesn't take kindly to a hothouse same as this," (indicating the house) "and she'll not be thriving until somebody's bedding [illegible]

It was Saturday, and after dinner Martin proposed that we should walk to the head of the cliff to see Blackwater by night, which was a wonderful spectacle, people said, at the height of the season, so I put a silk wrap over my head and we set out together.

There was no moon and few stars were visible, but it was one of those luminous nights in Summer which never forget the day. Therefore we walked without difficulty along the white winding path with its nutty odor of the heather and gorse until we came near the edge of the cliff, and then suddenly the town burst upon our view, with its promenades, theatres, and dancing palaces ablaze with electric light, which was reflected with almost equal brilliance in the smooth water of the bay.

We were five miles from Blackwater, but listening hard we thought we could hear, through the boom of the sea on the dark cliffs below us, the thin sounds of the bands that were playing in the open-air pavilions, and looking steadfastly we thought we could see, in the black patches under the white lights, the movement of the thousands of persons who were promenading along the front.

Then with a "Come" of his "starboard eye" in my direction he said:

"You haven't got a woman yet though? . . . No, I thought not. You're like myself, boy—there's not many of them sorts in for you."

A LUMINOUS NIGHT.

After that, and a more unflagging look my way, the old man talked about me, still calling me the "ill mistress" and saying they were putting a power of gold on my fingers, but he would be burning candles to the miracles of God to see the color of it in my cheeks, too.

"She's a plant that doesn't take kindly to a hothouse same as this," (indicating the house) "and she'll not be thriving until somebody's bedding

In doing this he had to put his arms about me and to hold me until I was steady on my feet, and having done so he took my hand and drew it through his arm and in this way we walked the rest of the way back.

It would be impossible and perhaps foolish to say that what that incident meant to me. I felt a thrill of joy, a quivering flood of delight which, with all the raptures of my spiritual love, had never come to me before.

Every woman who loves her husband must know what it is, but to me it was a great revelation. It was just as if some new passion had sprung into life in me at a single moment. And it had—the mighty passion that lies at the root of our being, the overwhelming instinct of sex which, taking no account of religion and resolutions, sweeps everything before it like a flood.

CEASED TO SPEAK.

I think Martin must have felt it too, for all at once he ceased to speak, and I was trembling so much with this new feeling of tenderness that I could not utter a word. So I heard nothing as we walked on but the crackle of our footsteps on the gravel path and the measured boom of the sea which we were leaving behind us—nothing but that and the quick beating in my own breast.

When we came to the garden the frowning face of the old house was in front of us, and it was all in darkness, save for the light in my room which came out on to the balcony. Everything was quiet. The air was breathless. There was not a rustle in the trees.

We took two or three turns on the lawn in front of my windows, saying nothing but feeling terribly, fearfully happy. After a few moments (or they seemed few) a cuckoo clock on my desk struck eleven, and we went up the stone stairway into my boudoir and parted for the night.

Chatter You Hear in Hotel Lobbies

Facts Versus Theory.

Every now and then a new "nut" comes out of the West. The latest is Professor T. E. Fitz, head of the music department of the State Teachers' College of Colorado. The professor has evidently got sick of teaching, because after he expounds his theories he declares he is coming East to study for grand opera. He declares:

"Girls who sing soprano should marry tenors.

"The old theory of opposite marrying is all wrong.

"The girl with a contralto voice should marry the man who signs bans.

"Tenors are shrewd, successful in business, good mixers, cordial and sympathetic.

"The girl with the contralto voice makes the best mother, she lives longer, is true, honest and dependable."

Facts are agin you, Professor. Maria Gay, contralto, is married to Zenatello, tenor. Margaret Mansenauer, contralto, is married to Ferrari Fontana, tenor, and there are other examples.

For P. M. Duty

Senator Ollie James told of a young man in Louisville who not long since hung up his shingle as attorney-at-law.

One afternoon a friend, upon entering the office, observed upon the desk of the new legal light a dollar alarm clock.

"Well, a good idea," said the friend. "One is very apt to oversleep these fine Spring mornings."

The youthful attorney smiled madly.

"This alarm clock was not bought for the reason you mention," said he. "I merely keep it here to wake me when it is time to go home."

Not a Knocker.

A worker in one of the settlements was speaking to some boys with reference to human history. He touched upon the doings of Nero, giving a vivid picture of the cruelty of the Emperor. It seemed to the speaker that he had fixed the tides of injustice and wickedness in the minds of his hearers. Then he began to ask a few questions.

"Boys, what do you think of Nero?"

Silence, broken only by an uneasy shifting of the lads in the seats.

"Well, Clancy," said the lecturer, making a personal appeal, "what do you think of Nero? Would you say he was a good man?"

Clancy hesitated. Finally, after again being urged to reply, he did so in these words:

"Well, he never done nothin' to me."

Making Use of Him

Frederick returned from college clad in all the gayest raiment of college clothes. His father watched him narrowly and suspiciously, and interrogated him as to the progress of his studies.

"Has which study," asked the old gentleman, "did you make the best showing?"

"In athletics," replied the young man. "I was a great success in rally events."

"Well, stick around," said the father. "You'll be useful. Your mother will be re-laying the carpets soon."

All in the Spelling.

"What do I look like, George?" asked the young wife, after she had arrayed herself in her latest ball gown for her hubby's inspection.

"A little bird, my dear," replied the truthful George.

A Careful Talesman

A certain lawyer was somewhat taken aback one day by the answer he received from a prospective juryman whom he was examining. The talesman was the owner of a garage.

"Do you know me or any of the lawyers in this case?" the attorney asked.

"No," replied the talesman.

"You don't know me, or Judge Blank, or Mr. Jones, or Mr. Smith here?"

"No."

"None of us store machines at your garage?"

"Well, sir," said the talesman, "all I can answer is that none of you do it under the names you have given in court this morning."

The Horse for Him.

A Scottish farmer of a miserly disposition bought a horse at a fair. On the way home he thought a drink of water would refresh it, so he got a pail of water; but the animal would not take it. When he got home he offered it a feed of corn; but to his surprise it would not touch that, either.

"Weel," he muttered to himself, "if only I was sure ye were a gold wecker, ye're the verra horse for me."

The Distinction

The discussion in one of the newspapers on whether one should use the word "woman" or "lady" and how one is to tell the difference has been enlivened by this story: Two London charwomen were discussing somebody else. "Yuss," said one, "she's a lydy she is. When she gits drunk she can take a cub 'ome."

Rather Fresh.

Joe—For my part, I think women are the salt of the earth.

Mac—Guess you're right, when you consider the number of men they have driven to drink.

RHEUMABATH

Stops Aches and Pains Forces the Poison Out

One of the greatest chemists in the United States has produced a white, crystalline compound called Rheumabath. When used in the hot bath it stops the aches, pains and twinges of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, and Grippe like magic.

This remarkable preparation contains the medical ingredients of famous Mineral Springs. It seems to have the same beneficial effects as a trip to Hot Springs.

You take a hot "Rheumabath" bath and—presto! the pain is gone. Your first Rheumabath treatment will make you say what thousands of others have said, "This beats a trip to Hot Springs."

The explanation of the chemist is that Rheumabath causes the uric acid and poisonous matter to ooze out through the sweat glands.

Those 2,000,000 little "sewers" discharge, an almost unbelievable quantity of poisons and toxins.

The relief is simply wonderful. Hundreds of sufferers from Rheumatism and kindred ailments have found relief in Rheumabath. Many noted ball players and actors use Rheumabath to keep in the pink of condition. Don't suffer from aches and pains when you can obtain relief so easily and economically.

On receipt of 25 cents The Rheumabath Company, Dept. 51, Minneapolis, Minn., will mail you a full-size package of Rheumabath, with simple directions for use. If not obtainable at your druggist. Valuable book on Rheumabath free. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and other leading drug stores. (21)

Praises This Remedy for Lung Trouble

Many people are led to believe that Lung Trouble is a disease which cannot be cured. The fact is, however, that many fully incurred their health. A change of climate is helpful now and then, but it has been restored to health by breathing its healing, life-giving, soothing, wholesome food, being fortified in their health with the same qualities of Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles. Investigate this case:

Bowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4.

"Gentlemen: About the spring of 1906 I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit until I got so weak I could not walk across the room. In fact I felt as well as ever in my life. I truly believe that Eckman's Alterative will relieve any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage."

A. G. BUTTERWORTH.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' use to be a most efficacious remedy for Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchial Troubles, Asthma, Weak Lungs, and all debilitating conditions. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

BECKER DENIES HE DESIRES TO BE REINSTATED

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—With former Police Lieutenant Charles A. Becker back in the Tombs prison to face a second trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, plans for the defence were vigorously begun by Mrs. Becker, his loyal wife, who predicted that her husband would soon be at liberty.

Mrs. Becker will practically have charge of her husband's case. She was an early visitor at the office of J. A. Shay, her husband's lawyer, and carefully went over the plans for Becker's defence. Becker, who was brought down from Sing Sing last night, occupied a cell in the Tombs near the one in which he lived while awaiting his first trial.

The prisoner said he had been advised not to give out any more interviews, but he went far enough to deny that he would seek reinstatement on the police force if he goes free.

Lieutenant John Becker, a brother of the prisoner, said:

"Charlie feels all right. He has lots of friends who are helping him, and he feels sure that within six months he will be a free man."

In this connection it was reported that a big defence fund had been raised for Becker in police and political circles. District Attorney Whitman said that Becker's trial will probably start in April or early in May. He is anxious for Becker to take the stand in his own behalf.

"I have some important questions I want to put to him," said Mr. Whitman, who will probably handle the prosecution in person.

Mr. Whitman was not worried over reports that "Bridgie" Webber, one of the important witnesses for the State, had disappeared. He said he felt sure Webber would be on hand when wanted.

Worcester Tourist Found Dead in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The police are investigating the death of an American, believed to have been Henry Collett of Worcester, Mass., who was a passenger on the steamer Cleveland for a cruise around the world. The body was found in a small hotel in a low quarter of Paris. It was lying on the floor with a bullet in the head and a heavy revolver by its side.

Mrs. McCombs Says, Use Husband's Name

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Mrs. William F. McCombs, wife of the chairman of the National Democratic Committee, denounces as "silly" the custom of some well-known women in using their maiden names instead of that of their husbands.

"I cannot see any reason for this reversion of custom," she said. "I think if a woman decides that she cares enough for a man to marry him she might well adopt his name for the rest of her life."

'Pilate's Daughter' Pleases Big Audience

"Pilate's Daughter," the Lenten drama produced in Boston annually for the past twelve years, drew a large audience to St. Alphonsus Hall, Roxbury. Miss Esther McElligott as the Blessed Mother, Edwin S. McGrath as St. John and Miss Nora Shea as Mary Magdalene in the tableau of the Crucifixion were excellent.

Two Men Burned by Boiling Pitch

Joseph Ober and William Klousman were spattered with boiling pitch when a machine for coating beer barrels with that substance exploded in the coopering department of the Boylston brewery, Jamaica Plain, today. Ober was painfully burned on the hands, face and neck and was taken to the City Hospital. He is fifty-four years old and lives at No. 1 Jess street, Jamaica Plain. He will recover. Klousman was sent to his home, No. 2 Dalrymple street.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT IN THE MARKET TODAY

Hamburg grapes grown in Belgium hot houses are selling in Boston today for $1.10 to $2 a pound. A large shipment having arrived a day or two ago. For those who find that imported hot house grapes do not agree with them, there are still some cold storage Malagas in the market, retailing for about thirty-five cents a pound.

California oranges are coming in to the Boston market in vast quantities. More than 15,000 cases arrived here in one day this week. They are selling for varying prices from 20 cents a dozen upward.

More mushrooms are coming into Boston just now than ever before. Yesterday 700 crates arrived from the South, a shipment of such magnitude being unprecedented in the Boston market. The price is falling under the heavy receipts and a big grape basket full can be bought for 60 to 65 cents.

New radishes and cucumbers are coming in. The former sell for five cents a bunch and the latter for 10 to 15 cents each.

The receipts of strawberries continue heavy and they are retailing as low as 25 cents a box.

Small kids quarters of Argentine beef has arrived in Boston this week. The beef graded fair and found a ready market.

Skins of Maine potatoes continue to rise in price, the extreme cold weather preventing shipment from Aroostook storehouses. The wholesale price at present is 70 cents a bushel.

Governor Receives Vermont Students

Governor Walsh received in the executive chamber today seventy-two pupils from four Vermont academies, who stopped in Boston on their way to Washington to visit the places of historical interest here.

Sun Oil Bid Is Lowest

The Sun Company of Philadelphia was the lowest bidder of five for a contract to furnish the city with 400,000 gallons of road oil to be used in the city streets. The bid was 6½ cents a gallon.

Homely and Aged Faces Now Easily Beautified

(Anni Sale in Woman's Realm.)

I have seen the platinum wrapper made beautiful and the complexion of good-looking women improved—I've seen ofttimes faces made young and pretty, blemishes and wrinkles below faces made shallow, white and shiny—in less than two weeks, by a very simple and harmless process that acts almost like a miracle. This is all there is to it: Ordinary mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists (non-ounce will do), is applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings. This gradually peels off the lifeless particles of surface skin, permitting the underlying satin to show itself. The newer, fresher skin, when wholly in evidence, forms a complexion which for beauty and youthfulness is incomparable with one produced by other means. A complexion so natural as one from artificiality as one guesses the secret of its nourishment. You'll not regret trying this really wonderful treatment.

Equally wonderful is the famous saxolite formula for removing wrinkles. One ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in a half pint witch hazel, shaking the bottle at this intervals. Then, the fine lines, the crow's feet, even the deeper furrows and crow's feet vanish completely.

may take an entire session in which to cross-examine the young husband, if not more. All of which means "Chippie" Rumrill, to whom Mrs. Rantoul referred as her "soul-mate and love," will not be heard to the witness stand until Monday. Rumrill was in court, however.

Among the striking features was the testimony in the deposition of Miss Mary O'Reilly of East Dedham, a trained nurse. Miss O'Reilly was employed more than two years in the Rantoul household. She testified she lived at the home, which has been the cause of the copious notes related to the turbulent affairs in the Rantoul household, constituted a sort of series of "log books on love." Entries told how Mr. Rantoul "again pleaded with Mrs. Rantoul to renew her love for him."

Howard L. Rantoul testified that his father was at one time Mayor of Salem. He said he was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1897. He is at present connected with the Kimball-Rantoul Company. Mr. Tom Sulphite Company and kindred enterprises controlled by William A. Russell & Brothers.

Q.—When did you meet Lois Burnett. A.—A year after I graduated from Harvard.

Q.—How did you meet her? A.—Through her brother, Joe. Joseph Harnett was a classmate of mine and a warm friend.

Q.—When did you become engaged to her? A.—In 1904.

Q.—When were you married. A.—In 1906.

Q.—When did you first meet Chester Chapin Rumrill? A.—In 1895, during my freshman year at Harvard.

Q.—Were you friends? A.—Yes, very close friends. Mr. Rumrill considered me one of his closest friends at college.

Q.—Did you belong to the same college clubs? A.—To some. We belonged to the A. D. Club.

Q.—Is that a limited organization? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you belond to the same clubs outside? A.—We joined the Tennis and Racquet Club when it was founded. He belonged to the Boston Athletic Association, which I do not belong to, and the somerset Club. I later joined the somerset Club.

MARRIED ON $2,000.

Q.—Now as to your friendship since college? A.—For a year after leaving college I did not see so much of him. I was working in Malden. Later, when I became established in Boston and he became connected with the claim department of the Boston & Albany, we saw more of each other. We looked each other in every three or four weeks and dined together or went to the theatre.

Q.—After leaving your position in Malden what did you do. A.—I was employed by E. H. Eldredge, real estate broker, two and a half years. Later I entered the office of C. M. Foster.

Q.—What was your income when you were married. A.—About 12,000 a year.

Q.—Where did you first live after your marriage? A.—We engaged a cottage in Cambridge. Later we lived at Elmwood, where my wife was living when I married her. I also engaged cottages at Beverly Farms in the Summer.

Q.—Did Joseph Burnett live with you and your wife for a while? A.—Yes, until his death in July, 1909. Mr. brother Francis also had a room with us for a time.

ENTRIES FROM DIARY.

Nurse Mary O'Reilly jotted down her talks with Rantoul and with the accused wife. One entry reads:

"Slept well. Arose twice. Mrs. R. seems pathetically thin."

Another tells of the husband's "gentle" begging for his wife's love:

"Friday, January 13.—Mrs. R. telephoned. Mr. Rantoul pleaded for her love again."

This is the nurse's testimony of what Mrs. Rantoul told her:

"Mrs. Rantoul told me she had married Mr. Rantoul out of pity and had never definitely or really loved him.

"She said Mr. Rumrill was very gentle and very sympathetic.

"She told me of her sorrow and unhappiness. She said Mr. Rumrill was so fond, so good and told me of her fondness for him and their understanding of each other.

"She said she loved Mr. Rumrill; that she had allowed him to kiss her and hold her hands. They both loved books and music.

"She said she had always entertained these sentiments, that she loved Mr. Rumrill a long time, but had never realized that he would come to love her.

"She said his love made her very happy, and that she was very unhappy in her home life.

"She said her husband was unsympathetic and was not congenial."—From testimony of Miss Mary O'Reilly, read in Rantoul divorce hearing at East Cambridge.

COURTROOM CROWDED WITH SOCIETY LEADERS TO HEAR RESPONDENT CONTINUE HIS TESTIMONY.

"She said her husband was unsympathetic and was not congenial.

"She said that Mr. Rumrill was always gentle, while her husband objected to her being ill."

The deposition and diary furnished the biggest thrill yet brought into the testimony and came after Dr. Francis Lowell Burnett of Beacon street, a brother, and Stanley Cunningham, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Rantoul, had testified that they appeared voluntarily as witnesses for Rantoul and against their kinswoman. This was the first intimation of any division in the wife's family in regard to her suit. It had been understood that her relatives were all supporting her in her fight for a divorce.

Miss O'Reilly deposed that she had never noticed any brutality or abuse on the part of Rantoul while she was in the Rantoul home. She said that after Mrs. Rantoul underwent an operation in 1912, her first words on coming out of the ether were:

"Chippie, Chippie, Chippie."

Rumrill was called "Chippie" by his intimate friends.

The nurse declared that Mrs. Rantoul had told her of being given a $300 ring to take the place of a ring which "typified unhappiness" and which Rumrill wanted the wife to get rid of.

"Mrs. Rantoul told us," said the nurse, "that she had written to Mr. Rumrill frequently and he to her. At one time it was daily. She said that he had furnished her with self-addressed envelopes."

Miss O'Reilly said the wife had asked her to go abroad with her (Mrs. Rantoul); that they would probably see Rumrill on this trip and, jokingly added that he would probably travel alone.

The nurse told of once asking the wife what would happen if she found out some time she did not longer love Rumrill.

"She said she would follow where love leads," deposed the nurse. "She also said that Mr. Rantoul would find some nice girl to make him feel happy. I asked her what her aunt would say. She replied that considering Mr. Rumrill had so much money, she did not think they would be so critical."

Nurse Tells How Mrs. Rantoul Described Her Love for Rumrill

"She (Mrs. Rantoul) said she loved Mr. Rumrill; that she had allowed him to kiss her and hold her hands. They both loved books and music.

"She said she had always entertained these sentiments, that she loved Mr. Rumrill a long time, but had never realized that he would come to love her.

"She said his love made her very happy, and that she was very unhappy in her home life.

"She said her husband was unsympathetic and was not congenial."—From testimony of Miss Mary O'Reilly, read in Rantoul divorce hearing at East Cambridge.

$20,000,000 Contract for Schwab in China

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 27.—Archibald Johnson, vice-president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, has returned here from a visit to China. It is believed he obtained contracts amounting to $20,000,000 for the construction of vessels for the Chinese navy. Mr. Schwab visited China a year ago and, it is said, paved the way for the opening of negotiations now said to be completed.

Porte Sets Day for Over-Ocean Flight

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—Lieutenant J. Mrs. Broadhurst's Suit Names Actress

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—"I don't see why the name of a woman should be dragged into the case," said George Broadhurst, the playwright, today, commenting upon the separation action brought by Mrs. Ida Raymond Broadhurst. Mrs. Broadhurst accuses her husband in regard to an actress.

Man Recovers $50 Lost in City Hall

George Small, court officer of the Charlestown Municipal Court, found a pocketbook containing $50 in a corridor at City Hall yesterday. He reported his find to the City Hall Avenue Station. Half an hour later Edwin Leadbetter of No. 31 Huntington avenue, Hyde Park, rushed into the station and reported his loss. Given a description of officer Small, Leadbetter overtook Small on the street and recovered his property.

Mansfield Raps Bond Sale Critics

All doubts concerning the success of the "Popular Bond Sale" at the State House were dispelled when State Treasurer Mansfield announced that actual sales amounted to more than $5,000,000.

Mr. Mansfield severely scored his critics and declared that those who opposed the sale would have been stubborn Tories had they lived during the Revolution.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back Hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Old-Time Cold Cure--Drink Tea

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the country, suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder, (frequently causing annoyance at night) who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Crexone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Crexone overcomes the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It passes out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the kidneys, muscles, causing rheumatism, backaches and pains the kidneys quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Crexone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else exactly like it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Crexone from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

have been to find out what was known by everybody interested to be untrue.

The suggestion of the AMERICAN was that the name of the anonymous newspaper be written into the record at this time. The fact is that he has NO OTHER employer.

After a deal of what appeared to be an unnecessary delay the Speaker has ruled the point to stand, votes taken and at last accounts all the reporters had "signed up" for the season with a single exception.

Which Mr. Twohig—serving his first year at the State House it should also be said—proceeded to do without delay.

Yet here were the Republicans of Mr. Twohig's committee succeeding not only in getting the young Democrat to vote what them, and against his party, but actually insisting on it to hold the lead.

"I failed to touch second," he said.

Without desire or direction—and that nobody in on record unless you want to say all of them so—the recommendation was adopted and the proposed rule tossed out of the window.

ZBYSZKO WINNER OVER ABERG IN TITLE MAT BOUT AT MECHANICS

ZBYSZKO BEATS ABERG IN BIG TITLE BATTLE

HOW FALLS WERE MADE.

	Won by	Time
1st Fall	Zbyszko	62m. 45s.
2nd Fall	Aberg	30m. 28s.
3rd Fall	Zbyszko	33s.

By L. R. MURDOCH.

By a stroke of skill and fortune, Stanislaus Zbyszko, the mighty Pole is today as near the world's Graeco-Roman wrestling champion as anybody else.

For want of a logical claimant, Alexander Aberg, the young Finn, has called it his. Last night Aberg was vanquished by the Pole. Since Aberg's claim was not disputed by any wrestler of consequence, Zbyszko can hardly be now.

Wherefore, we will assert that Zbyszko won the world's Graeco-Roman championship at Mechanics Hall in Boston last night.

It is strange, but nevertheless true, that very few seem to know what Graeco-Roman wrestling is. So space will not be wasted if we repeat that it is wrestling in which no holds below the waist are permitted. There is no such thing as a toe hold—which made and kept Frank Gotch champion of the world—or any other leg or crotch hold.

More than 6,000 saw frantic wrestling fans—men and women—see Zbyszko beat Aberg, the Finn last night, and they were the most excited wrestling crowd that has gathered in Boston in years.

GREAT MATCH AND CROWD.

When Aberg, who is fully 25 pounds lighter than Zbyszko, threw the huge Pole for the second fall, the immense crowd stood and cheered for five minutes. There was pandemonium in Mechanics Hall. It was a great match, witnessed by a great crowd.

It took Zbyszko 62 minutes and 45 seconds to throw Aberg for the first fall. Aberg threw Zbyszko in 30 minutes and 28 seconds for the second fall.

Zbyszko won the third and deciding fall in 33 seconds by the sudden stroke of fortune mentioned above. The end came so quickly like Frank Gotch's celebrated four seconds' fall from Hackenschmidt.

Aberg showed that he is fully as great a wrestler as Zbyszko. But he has not the strength and weight of the Pole. Both of the falls that Zbyszko scored had the element of accident in them. Aberg's one victorious fall was due to skill and might, pure and simple.

Yet, time and again, when the Finn had the Pole on the mat with what should have been a decisive hold between evenly matched wrestlers, Aberg was simply unable to turn over the huge bulk and strength of the Pole and pin his shoulders to the mat.

ABERG'S HOPES SHATTERED.

Aberg went into the match an unbeaten man. He is young. He came here with his eyes on the world's championship, Graeco-Roman and catch-as-catch-can.

Practically, was he eager to meet and vanquish Zbyszko, after which he intended to demand a match with Gotch, failing which he intended claiming the championship of all championships.

He failed to beat Zbyszko in a fair and square bout, principally because he is not a big enough man, but partly because he got the worst of the breaks.

After the final fall was counted against him, Aberg lost his temper and attacked Zbyszko in the ring. The latter was not expecting the assault and defended himself without regard to wrestling rules.

The crowd, astonished by the sudden termination of the battle, was standing when Aberg rushed the Pole.

Paddy Mehir, referee, tried to stay him, but he dodged around Mehir and in an instant the infuriated Finn had the Polish victor pinioned on the floor. Then Zbyszko down twice before a policeman leaped into the ring and ended the battle.

MEN IN FREE-FOR-ALL.

But this, however, was only a repetition on a larger scale of what had happened after the second fall. After Aberg had suddenly thrown Zbyszko in that fall the Pole rushed the Finn and started to mix it up. He was excited over his sudden reverse.

When he recovered his temper and before he had done any damage, he apologized to the man who had laid him low.

Zbyszko won the first fall, after an hour's sparring, when Aberg had him down and was trying to roll his huge bulk over. For nearly two minutes the Finn was struggling principally with a half Nelson, to put the prostrate Pole upon his back.

Suddenly Zbyszko rolled over and, catching Aberg by surprise, got across body hold and left the Finn on the floor, crushing him to a fall by sheer weight. Aberg made a certain to escape the deadly hold.

Aberg got the second fall after a half-hour of fast, exciting wrestling by suddenly grabbing the huge Pole with a body hold and half Nelson and forcing him on his head on the mat.

TOO HEAVY FOR ABERG.

In the third fall Aberg rushed Zbyszko at the call of time in the hope of getting another fall like the preceding one. He grabbed for a body lift three times, but on each attempt his arms slipped off the sweating Pole who, on the third attack, caught Aberg, child in air and tossed on ground, with a tout les bras hold, pinioning both arms suddenly and unexpectedly with both of his own and bearing the astonished Finn to the mat for a quick and complete fall.

Aberg had been looking for a chance to get the Pole off his feet which he had discovered was about the only way to overcome the difference in weight.

It was his own impulsiveness that beat him, because the experienced Zbyszko was looking for just such a rush and caught the Finn off his guard.

In the first fall, Zbyszko was always the aggressor. After that the Finn was on the offence.

JOHNSON BROKE AND MUST SIGN TO BATTLE SAM

By JACK CONWAY.

JOE WOODMAN, manager of one Samuel Langford, Boston colored, has given up hope of matching the Boston "Tar Baby" with Jack Johnson. Woodman declared today that Johnson is almost "broke" and that he will soon be forced to make a match with the Cambridge heavyweight in order to raise funds.

Johnson is said to be hard to clash with Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh white hope, on account of the $5,000 forfeit he has to put up by June, but it is reported that the contest will never take place. It is claimed that Jack McKinley and Willie Lewis and "Mad" Mellody are the "three millionaires" who have guaranteed Johnson $35,000 in order to get Moran.

Several times Brock was cautioned for hitting in clinches and for low [illegible]. Murphy supporters protested but Brock told the referee [illegible] to violate any rules.

MURPHY LOSES 12-ROUND BOUT TO PHIL BROCK

CLEVELAND, Feb 27.—Phil Brock outpointed Eddie Murphy of Boston in a fast twelve-round bout at Canton tonight.

The crowd of 1,200 cheered the boxers equally for their game fight for honors, and twelve rounds [illegible] not until the last few rounds was there any advantage apparent.

Then Brock started a whirlwind attack that would have [illegible] decision as [illegible] it was called a draw.

OTHER BOUTS.

At New York—Johnny Dundee beat Pal Moore, ten rounds.

Billy Beanett lost to Dick Peters, ten rounds.

At Lawrence—Joe Eagan beat Johnny Glover.

At [illegible]—Johnson and Billy Edwards draw.

Joe Mandot put Johnny Maguire out, two rounds.

At Meriden, Ct.—West beated Parks, ten rounds.

At St. Louis—Jimmy Duffy outpointed Freddie Welsh.

At London—Joe Burrell defeated Beanard, fifteen rounds.

WHEN Johnson fought Jim Johnson, a little over 15,000 was taken in at the gate while Langford and Joe Jeanette drew $11,000. Consequently it is easy to see that Johnson and Moran would be doing very well if they drew $20,000.

WOODMAN says that Johnson was recently obliged to sell his big touring car in order to get a bite to eat on some rainy morning. Tired [illegible] has been engaging in watch matches but has not drawn very well. He has also proved a failure on the stage on account of his refusal to enter a ring with "No He."

WOODMAN claims that Johnson is not hog fat as has been reported. He says the big fellow is in good condition and that he is able to defeat any boxer in the world with the exception of Langford. Under [illegible] masters are eager to arrange for a match between Johnson and Langford. It is believed that the latter would draw better in London than in any other place in the world. The forfeit is almost certain that if Johnson and Langford meet it will be before the National Sporting Club.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, the nineteen-year-old French [illegible] weight wonder, will enter the [illegible] army in October. He will be obliged to carry a musket for two years. At the end of his term he will be only twenty-two years of age and will be developed physically.

Mabel Herbert Urner's Great Series:

Their Married Life

Helen's Mother Reluctantly Appeals to Her for Help in a Financial Way

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

HELEN laid down her mother's letter and went over to the window. Pressing her hot cheek against the chill pane of glass, she gazed down at the street with its ragged piles of soiled snow.

An old woman with a shawl over her bent head and a large basket on her arm was hurrying by. The wind whipped out her thin skirt, showing her bedraggled petticoat and her slattern shoes.

Helen watched her out of sight, and then turned back to the letter. A few moments before she had opened it with the pleasant expectancy of her mother's usual cheerful, home-newsy letter. But the news this had brought had left her crushed, bewildered.

That her father's practice was not what it had been and that he was not very strong Helen knew. But that things should be so bad—it came as a staggering shock.

She must either ask Warren for money to help them—or the home must be mortgaged. That was the appalling alternative this letter put before her.

Torn with conflicting impulses, Helen walked distractedly from one window to the other. She must help them—she MUST! Yet how could she put this extra burden upon Warren? All Winter he had been complaining that business was bad. How could she go to him with this?

Again she took up the letter.

Carterstown, Mo.,
Monday, Feb. 25.

Dear Helen—I cannot tell you how hard it is for me to write this letter. But when I see that this worry is killing your father I feel that now you ought to know.

For the last few months he has been far from well, and his hearing is much worse. This deafness, of course, interferes with his practice, and has lost him many patients. I wrote you of the new doctor who has opened up an office here. He has a car, and keeps a young woman attendant in his office. All of the new people are going to him, and some of your father's old patients.

Helen, things have become so bad that unless you can help us a little now we will have to mortgage the home. And I'm afraid of the effect that will have on your father.

You remember the lot on North Main street? Well, we mortgaged that a year ago last Fall. I did not want to worry you needlessly.

I know what a shock this will be, and how you will dread to ask help of Warren. I know how you shrink from asking him for money, and never thought you would ever have to ask for a cent for us.

Of course, everything we have will some day be yours, and if you talk over with Warren he may be willing to take a small mortgage on the house. We would much rather feel that it was with you than with strangers.

Yet Warren may not be willing to do this, for I have heard him say that he did not believe in any kind of business dealings with relatives. He might rather loan your father a smaller sum outright. Two hundred dollars, I think, would be enough to carry us through the rest of the Winter and Spring.

When the warm weather comes your father can get around better, and then we will make something from the garden and chickens. This year I'll put up a lot of jelly and preserves. I sold all I made last Summer and had orders for more.

I cannot bear to think that we shall ever become a real burden on you and Warren. It would kill your father. But if we could get along without taking the mortgage. If you could help us a little through this Winter, I think then we could help ourselves.

Cannot write more now, for he has just come in with one of his sick headaches. He has them so often, they seem to be growing worse all the time. I think that is what affects his hearing. I want him to go to the new doctor to be examined—but you know your father.

Now, Helen, if you feel you cannot act, Warren, don't hesitate to write and tell me so frankly. I do not want to ask you to do anything that will be too hard, or that will make things strained between you and him. But I thought now I ought to let you know.

With love, as ever,
MOTHER.

Helen opened a drawer in the desk and took out her check book. Forty-three dollars and eighty cents. That was all she had of her own!

With bitter resentment she thought of the twenty-five she had loaned Mrs. Thurston. For the moment she felt like calling her up and demanding the money. It had been over a month and she had not heard a word from her. She would wait until the first—not a day longer. If Mrs. Thurston did not return the money by then she would ask her for it.

A SLIGHT RELIEF.

Tearing out a check, Helen now filled it out to her mother for $40. She would send this by special delivery. Hurriedly she wrote the letter.

Dear Mother:

I have only $43 in the bank and am sending you a check for $40. This will help out until I have time to think what I can do. Your letter just came and I am still bewildered. I did not dream things were so bad. You should have let me know sooner. I just loaned a Mrs. Thurston $25—it makes me wild to think of it. I am sure she will pay it back, but I may have to wait—and I could have sent it to you now.

I feel very guilty when I think of the money I've spent on clothes lately. You see Warren makes me an allowance of $50 a month for myself, that is for my clothes, carfare, etc. Of course, everything for the house he pays for, and he's often very generous about getting me an expensive gown or coat. While we were in Paris he gave me a lot of extra money for clothes. But $50 is all I have regularly.

The worst of it is that in the last few months he's complained of business being very bad and we've been trying to cut down our household expenses. So you see how I dread to ask him for anything just now.

Mother, if I send you twenty-five dollars—half of my allowance each month—do you think you could manage on that until Warren's business is better? If you were sure of that much every month, besides what father may make, don't you think you could get along. And Warren need not know. I have plenty of clothes now. I got so many in Paris last year that I will need almost nothing this Spring.

Oh, I'd so much rather do this than ask Warren for money now. He might be very willing to give it to me; he might even send you so much a month himself; but I don't know—and I'm afraid to ask him. You know, in some ways he's most generous; yet in other ways he is very, very hard.

I suppose I've always been and always will be afraid of him, but I can't help that. And now that things have been going very smoothly for the past year I can't tell you how I shrink from doing anything that might make conditions strained. So I'll try first every possible way of helping you without asking him.

If only I could make some money myself! Perhaps there's some way I can. At least, you can be sure of twenty-five dollars a month until I can find some way of sending you more. I'll write again this week.

Lovingly,
HELEN.

It was with a slight feeling of relief that Helen mailed this letter. At least the forty dollars would help some. It would give her time to think.

A BIG SHOCK.

Somehow she had never thought of her father as not being fairly prosperous. The possibility of his ever needing Warren's help had never occurred to her.

That there were many men who did help their wives' families, she knew, but she had never dreamed that Warren would have to help hers.

She felt that he had a sort of contempt for dependent people. His own family were all well off, which would make it harder for him to understand and sympathize. His creed always was that every one should work and save while young, so there would be no need for dependency in old age.

But Helen knew that her father HAD worked; his years as a village physician had been full of hardships and self-sacrifices. But he had always been over-generous, giving much of his services free, and now at sixty-two he had almost nothing to show for his life's work.

Twenty-five dollars a month! Would that be enough to help them? Must she force down her pride and show this letter to Warren? What would she do? What would be his attitude?

What if he should say that he had all the expenses now that he could meet—that he could do nothing? If he said that, she knew that for months things would be strained between them. There would always be the feeling that she had asked him to help her father—and he had refused.

No; she COULD not ask him! She was AFRAID to ask him! She must manage to help them in some other way.

The Real Heart-Trouble Germ

A Remarkable Discovery by M. Danny, Scientist

BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

ONCE upon a time there was a young man who discovered a fluttering at his heart that scared him very much.

Specialist after specialist examined him, thrummed upon his chest and listened gravely through their stethoscopes, but just as gravely shook their heads.

His case was past their understanding.

The young man didn't smoke, didn't drink, and had always enjoyed good health. Truly, his case was a mystery indeed.

At last in despair he one day wandered into a house that bore the sign, "M. Danny, Scientist." To be sure, the "M. D." was very young-looking, but Mr. Young Man was so desperate that he didn't care.

M. Danny looked quizzically at the young man, and then produced an enormous magnifying glass. When he peered through it he saw what you see in the picture above.

And then he told the young man what he saw.

"I never knew a germ could be so beautiful-looking," said the young man, "and in fact I happen to know that particular germ very well."

"Then go to that 'germ' and tell her your trouble," said M. Danny. "That's the only hope you can have for a cure."

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS.

It is always well to believe a few things deeply—provided only they are deep things.

Great pleasures are let on short lease; big emotions fade like sunsets, and lesser feelings follow and linger like soft twilights.

Blessed is a man whose winding up is to a watch—and is needed with equal regularity.

Man by taking thought may not be able to add a cubit to his stature—but woman, by taking the right dressmaker—may seem to do so.

Women is extravagant with her money and her moments—but however much money a man spends of his labor's he spends very little time there.

The better the car, the less noise its engine makes; the deeper the river, the more noiselessly it flows to the sea; and big souls do not babble and chatter and explode like an opened exhaust.

What you ARE DOING, though small, is larger than the biggest thing YOU INTEND TO DO.

It is not enough to aim—you must hit.

Varnish and polish do not hide the grain of the wood—they bring it boldly to view. And knowing this many human beings treat their personality to a disguising—coat of paint!

That better in than play—
Of simple cares and love that grows
More sweet from day to day."

"It is indeed a good thing to be well descended—but the glory belongs to one's ancestors," says Nathaniel Hawthorne. Indeed you say so. While admiring your family tree, pray remember that it is the tree you gaze upon—and "YOU" may be a little rotten apple that has fallen to the ground.

FRECKLES

February and March Bring Out Unsightly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads February and March because they are likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and wind have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the recent discovery of a new prescription—othine—double strength—makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength othine should remove them.

Get an ounce from any of the Rieger-Jayne stores or Hougton & Dutton and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were stronger this afternoon, reports from Mexico being reassuring. Foreign influence in the New York market appeared to be waning, as the advance on this side followed selling here of about 15,000 shares by London. No buying by Europeans was reported. The bears of New Haven made it a conspicuous issue. It declined because of rumors that serious differences had arisen between Chairman Elliott and the Department of Justice.

UNDERTONE WAS STEADY.

Prices were irregular, but the undertone was steady when the New York market opened, it reflecting the situation in London, where traders were somewhat reassured to see that the financial situation in Paris had improved. It was also noted that the latter city that the recent downward movement in New York had affected speculation more than capital. One deterrent in Europe is a diminution in business. There is a slackening of trade likely to spread in this country. The steel trade abroad is dull for instance, and there is easy money everywhere and both the Bank of England and the Bank of France have added to their gold reserves within a week. There is expectation of further demands for the yellow metal from Paris. All the coin hoarded when war began in the Balkans has not reappeared.

MEXICAN SITUATION.

The Mexican situation has added to the uncertainty with which the stock market is regarded, but its influence is more chronic than acute. Until the Wilson administration shows a disposition to change its policy of inertia it seems to be a foregone conclusion that nothing will happen to eliminate this irritant. There is fear, however, that something may happen to precipitate a crisis. In some quarters it is said that the situation is more of a near factor in Europe than in this country.

PUBLIC NOT PARTICIPATING.

There is so little public participation in markets that the professional element is accountable almost wholly for price movements. In the main of late they have reflected pessimism natural to those who are not making much profit, as much, if not more, than anything else. But the failure recently of bears to force down prices to any marked extent may indicate that sentiment has a strong bullish undercurrent. Some strong interests, it is maintained, have been accumulating on declines, and the recent downward movement has resulted only in floor professional operations. It is said that the recent covering was extensive. It was about all the support perhaps lend to the market. Both bulls and bears are at present lacking to stimulate trading as to the probable trend. While the market continues so dull and professional as at present it is bound to be narrow.

LACKED INTERESTING FEATURES

The market lacked interesting features this morning and the only issues of business was the only moderate. Rock Island was affected by the announcement that the road would probably pass dividends this year and that a protective committee would look out for interests of collateral trust bondholders, bonds and common and preferred stock selling lower. It is thought that selling of Northern Pacific was to facilitate covering on short account. Missouri Pacific made a good gain which was attributed to the statement by George J. Gould that Pacific cannot be compelled to pay any assessment upon Wabash holdings. Secretary "Kitty" Precident Schaff says that while gross earnings of his road may increase this Spring the commercial and crop outlook was never better along its line. "There is nothing discouraging in present conditions or in the outlook for the company," he said.

MEXICAN NEWS CHEERING.

The tone was stronger in the late forenoon. General Motors making a big gain and a number of the leading issues, including Amalgamated, steel, Great Northern preferred and Union Pacific, advanced point. Substantial upward movement was credited to the report that Huerta was showing conciliatory disposition toward the United States and had made overtures to the government at Washington looking to resuming peace. Hope that the Mexican dictator will near the end of his resources was a cause for the good gain by Mexican Petroleum. By noon bay prices were ranging higher. Mexican Petroleum, Kansas & Texas and St. Paul, Utah Copper, General Electric, Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific being among issues to show the most gains.

BOSTON DULL BUT FIRM.

The local market was quiet and steady at the start and later in the day there attained higher levels. Coppers were firm as a class. By midday a number had advanced materially, including Granby, Indiana, Quincy, North Butte and Superior. Franklin was higher because of a statement that rock from the property had assayed very favorably. Boston & Albany continued more than a point, but New Haven was weak. The report that officials of the road and the Department of Justice had come to a standstill in pending negotiations was denied.

Stocks ex-dividend in the Boston market were: Boston & Albany, 2; Concord & Montreal, shares 1 and 4, each $1.75; Fitchburg preferred $1.25; Union Pacific, $2.50; Wolcott preferred, $2; General Electric, $2; Sugar common and preferred, $1.75; United States Steel common, $1.25; Utah Consolidated, $1; Kerr Lake, 25 cents.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The copper stocks opened with steadier this morning, and rising up 2s. 6d. and futures 5s. and not much change. Spot was 74 7s. 6d. of 6s gain at the close. For the week ended February 21 exports from this country totaled 2,000 tons. Quaker Oats earnings decreased $142,000 in 1913, but the balance of $1,311,476 after dividends on 42,000-000 preferred stock is equal to 20.17 on 37,500,000 common, Surplus is $761,553, a decrease of $171,462. The Valley Railway company reports a deficit of $213,376 for last year, compared with a surplus of $167,260 in 1912.

Earnings of the Baldwin Locomotive Works last year were equal to 13.1 per cent on the common stock compared with 11.4 per cent in 1912.

CHAPTER I.

Young Fred Allen when he went to college was not equipped for it.

He hadn't either the preparatory instruction or the stamina of character to go through. Old Thomas Allen had paid his tuition at the most expensive private "prep" and the example of the ancient Allen line seemed in history for courage and sacrifice and genius, should have spared any boy for so simple an ordeal of temptation as a college affords.

But young Fred wasn't traced. He passed into the line classes because he didn't know enough, and he couldn't make much progress because of classes because he knew too much. The pampered son of a multi-millionaire father and mother escapes knowing too much about the things that some fellows of his latter teens know least of. The faculty of the college gave the boy warning and then closed the doors of seats to his father. His father, who was probably a country person's progress through the muddy and dust-deep roads of Illinois and Michigan for a couple of months in the fields and fires for four Winters to earn his fortune at Galesburg, had little sympathy for the son's neglect of duty.

He sent him scathing letters—but he followed them with generous checks that convinced the old man of the letters. As long as his father sent him money, young Fred had the best of all right. The guy letter went on and the dull lessons were ignored. Finally the faculty expelled him.

CHAPTER II.

Thomas Allen sat in his study in fifth avenue home. He would have been happier living with his old cronies at the club. But because he thought his boy to have a place "home" and because of the half-formed memories of that boy's dead mother, who had been the same when she was alive she endured the loneliness in the West, the lonely feeling in the too spacious palace. Now he had retired and left his big street business to the care of younger hands, he had given most of his time and thought to the aimless money to philanthropy. and he still had hope that his boy might come into real manhood and hold into him as an aide and fellow-worker in the work after he was dead.

He was poring over a batch of letters and bills (which he always read himself for fear that he might miss a clue unearthing of his old) when Griggs came in.

The white-haired servant's hand trembled as he presented the tray with a telegram on it which was marked "Midnight."

Middlesex was the seat of the college where young Fred was. Griggs, the old servant and nurse, had seen the boy from babyhood and whose affections never broke, had grown fearful of telegrams from the college.

"What's the matter with you?" snapped Mr. Allen, to conceal his own fears.

"Nothing, sir, I hope."

Mr. Allen tore off the yellow envelope and read:

"We regret to say that, because of your son's delinquencies, we believe it best that he sever his connection with this institution."

CHAPTER III.

"I—I hope you'll give the young man another chance, sir—I hope you will," pleaded Griggs at the door.

His answer came in a roar of rage and Mr. Allen stood up menacingly.

"Griggs!" he cried. "Do you dare to say that you would open a telegram addressed to me? Do you dare to say that you know what is in this telegram?"

"Open it—no, sir. What is in it—yes, sir."

"What do you mean by that? Who told you?"

"Mr. Fred, sir. He's come home. He's only a little boy yet, Mr. Allen. I'm making very bold, but I know that boy is good—only he's had too much money. He came here only two hours ago and he told me what was up—part of it, anyway. He's been put out of college."

He has, yes," growled Mr. Allen. "Where is he?"

"Downstairs—in the library, sir." "Bring him here, Griggs."

CHAPTER IV.

"There is your money—the last money you will ever get from me—and you may have the house now—after you have packed what things you want—and never come here again."

Thomas Allen's stern voice rank with more than the injury of pride as he faced his son.

"But, father, I—"

"There's nothing I want to hear from you, sir. Griggs will see to your getting off. After that there will be no Griggs, no help from others for you. YOU WILL FIGHT YOUR OWN WAY."

Fred turned and drooped out through the door. Only the affectionate parting of Griggs softened what seemed to him the final disaster.

If he had seen his father's gray head bowed over the study table, he might have felt deeper repentance than he did.

It was three months later that Griggs brought a cablegram to his employer. It read:

"Son died. Cable instructions.

"SELLINGHAM,
"Scotland Yard."

CHAPTER V.

It was with difficulty that the managers of the hospital pageant induced Mr. Allen to attend the symphony concert which he had arranged. Beatrice Brooks, the social queen of Boston's select circles, was with Mrs. R. S. Bolton, in charge of social reservations. All invited. No collection.

Proposed Immigration Laws Bad for the Farmer

This Nation Needs More Men to Work on the Farms—AND MORE TO EAT THE FARM'S PRODUCTS

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company.

Congress is busy at laws to limit immigration. Such laws are cruel, contrary to the spirit upon which this country is founded, harmful to the prosperity of the country, A DISGRACE TO THE MEN WHO SACRIFICED THEIR LIVES TO ESTABLISH "A LAND OF LIBERTY AND HOPE."

One man suggests that all foreigners shall be kept out unless they come up to a "certain physical standard." It means that they must be so many feet and inches high and weigh so many pounds.

Such a rule would seem to be all right applied to hogs or horses. But the rule seems rather idiotic applied to men.

It is needless to point out that many of the world's greatest human beings have been undersized, because the energy of their bodies went into their brains instead of going to build up a big frame.

The inventor of this law to exclude human beings under a certain size probably desired to keep out Russian Jews, many of whom are stunted by hunger and brutality.

AND MANY OF WHOM, WHEN THEY GET HERE, SUCCEED SO RAPIDLY AND GROW SO FAST COMMERCIALLY AS TO AROUSE THE JEALOUSY OF MEAN SPIRITS.

Other would-be excluders of immigration suggest an educational test.

The man or woman arriving here must show that he or she has sufficient education to please the United States.

This, as we have occasionally pointed out to you, would have excluded the mother of Abraham Lincoln, who could not very well read or write any known language, but who was NONE THE LESS A USEFUL CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES, SINCE THE BOY THAT SHE CREATED KEPT THE COUNTRY TOGETHER.

Such women as she are still alive in the world. And there is little doubt that some of them want to come from other countries to this country.

The blood of Nancy Hanks, Lincoln's mother, was not American blood—except for a little while. It came from Europe.

Would any sane man want to keep out a woman of that type because she had not as much education as the average pickpocket plying his trade on the street cars, or the average convict in the penitentiary?

Leaving aside the brutality, cruelty and meanness of the enemies of immigration, however, and leaving aside the great need in this country of more hands willing to do hard work, willing to cultivate soil unused, willing to build up industries, let us look at the question of immigration today from the point of view of THE FARMER.

Just lately this country has done about all that it could to injure the farmer with so-called "tariff reform." Whatever the farmer produces now comes without any taxation. Cattle from Mexico come across the border without any tax, farm products from Canada and from all over the world—and our wise Government did not even take the trouble to demand reciprocity for our farmers.

With the European, Canadian, Argentine, Mexican and all other farms competing with our own, and with no tariff to protect our farmers—THE MEN WHO PAY HIGH DUTIES ON WHAT THEY WANT—what is to become of the farms?

Would it not be a good idea, at least, to permit the immigrants to come in to EAT THE THINGS THAT THE FARMS PRODUCE?

A hundred thousand immigrants eat a good many bushels of potatoes, a good many pounds of pork and beef.

If the farms of this country have been growing, if the wealth produced from the soil has so far exceeded all other wealth—it is because we have had here PEOPLE able and willing to buy that farm produce and eat it up.

Farmers might interest themselves in this immigration proposition, for what they need is POPULATION, men that work hard through the day, eat heartily at night and make farming worth while by buying farm products.

Murphy a Wise Selection

Governor Walsh has selected John R. Murphy, one of the best men in Boston, for the position of chairman of the Boston Finance Commission. He has ability, honesty, experience, courage, knowledge, and he is willing to undertake the strenuous duties of the office.

The change from John A. Sullivan to Mr. Murphy will be gratifying to most of the citizens of Boston. Mr. Murphy, though an upright man, is no Pharisee; neither will he prostitute the powers of his office in any personal quarrels with public men. He will not PERSECUTE ANYBODY, but he WILL protect the city from EVERYBODY, big or little.

Mr. Murphy will make the institution over which he presides an example for imitation by other cities and States. It is a hard-working position, but Mr. Murphy knows how to work.

HOW BILL GOT ALONG---No. 4

". . . WE WERE PLAYING POOL FOR THE DRINKS."

In the morning, when Bill awoke, the first thing his friend said was: "Gee! I had an edge on last night. A whole bunch of us were playing pool for the drinks, and I got a fine bun on. It didn't cost me a cent, though, for I didn't lose a single game."

How many times have you heard some one say, "Come on; have a drink. So-and-So is buying—it won't cost you anything"?

No, it won't cost you anything, only your prospects, manhood and future happiness.

Bill was greatly surprised when his friend admitted he had been in such a condition the night before, and when he told his friend he had not noticed it, that young man seemed to be very much pleased.

"Of course you didn't notice it; I know how to handle the stuff, I do. Why, I've even been 'lit up' on the job and the boss wasn't wise to me at all."

But the boss WAS wise to him, and if the young man had taken the trouble to think for himself he would have seen why other young men went past him when times for advancement came.

Bill's friend dressed and hurried to work, leaving Bill some addresses where he could apply for a job. As Bill sat there, he thought of what his friend had said about his clothes. I can't see anything the matter with them, thought Bill, they're clean and neat looking—guess I'll save that money the new ones would cost, 'til I get a job, anyway. After breakfast in a little restaurant close by, Bill started out to look for a job, with the letters of recommendation from the minister and leading grocer of Bill's home town in his pocket. The first place Bill tried was in the shipping department of a large concern, and when he he finally got to see the boss and showed him the letters, they seemed to cause that young man and some others who were looking over his shoulder a great deal of merriment. Finally the boss said, "I don't know who these hicks are, and besides, we don't need anybody just now, anyway."—H. C.

The Church and State—Possible to Join Two, Like Husband and Wife, Together, Yet Each With Its Own Identity

By DR. CHARLES H. PARKHURST

A NOTABLE experiment has recently been tried in the State of Washington which is worth describing, without, however, arguing for or against the possibility of such an experiment working out in the State of Massachusetts.

The city of Tacoma—a town, by the way, which has been so phenomenal in its growth as to acquire the name of "The City of Destiny"—is municipally presided over by Mayor William W. Seymour, a personal friend of the writer of this article.

Statesmanship and godliness are inextricably mixed in his constitution, and this resulted in his unique venture of calling together all the Mayors of the State to a conference to be held in one of the Tacoma churches. It would appear from the account given in the Tacoma Daily Ledger that the church was selected as a gathering place for the reason that it was a church and not merely as a substitute for some ordinary secular hall.

Mayor Seymour's thought and that of the visiting functionaries was evidently that while there was no intention of converting the conference into a prayer meeting or a Sunday school, the occasion was to be spiced with just a touch of religious seasoning. It did not develop into a union-of-Church and State affair, but something in the environment and in the circumstances of the case prevented the meeting from becoming exactly like the ordinary political caucus.

So much can be gathered from the Ledger's sympathetic account of the proceedings. If it went no further than this the event was a recognition (and was realized to be a recognition) of the fact that Church and State have, after all, something to do with each other.

The Church does not bind the State, neither does the State bind the Church, but the two exist in each other's presence and are more or less amenable to each other's influence, like husband and wife in every properly organized household, each of the two preserving its own individuality, but at the same time mutually influential.

Such is the fact in the case, and the political assemblage in the Tacoma sanctuary illustrated that fact and advertised it, and it was a felicitous stroke on the part of the religious statesman who was the originator.

What the municipal problems were that came up for discussion it would be interesting to know, but the Tacoma newspaper does not state. More to our present purpose will be a dozen lines that editorially set forth the feelings expressed in regard to the unique nature of the conference by those participants in its proceedings:

It was not in the mind of any of the speakers that the divorce between Church and State was fundamental and complete, that the Church had nothing to do with the municipality and the municipality nothing to do with the Church. On the contrary, one of the speakers was of the opinion that the present phenomenal uplifting of the moral forces of the country was in the main due to the effective teaching of the Christian message, and furthermore that the problems of life can only be solved eventually by religion and education.

We have the impression here in the East that people in the Middle West and out on the Pacific slope are pretty generally under the spell of a soulless and godless materialism, but for the Mayors of the State of Washington to come together in a half political and half religious conclave, and inside a church, to emphasize religion as essential to good government and to the redemption of politics is a stride forward that commonwealths lying nearer the Atlantic might have hard work to keep up with.

Expression

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I COULD write about a fire
Rising high and rising higher,
Till the city's tallest spire
Seemed comparatively low.
I could tell about the racking
Cries of frightened humdreds packing
Every inch of ground, or tracking
For a safer place to go.

I could tell, and tell with relish,
Just as this tale I embellish,
How the Flame King, fierce and hellish,
Brought red terror to the town.
As a baby blows a bubble
I could stretch this stuff out double;
Or, to save a lot of trouble,
I could say "The barn burned down."

When Nilus Gave Up His Secret

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

FIFTY-ONE years ago Captains Speke and Grant announced to the world their discovery of the source of the Nile.

It was a bit of news for which men had been waiting for thousands of years. From the day on which Herodotus got back to Greece from the Land of the Pyramids straight on down to a period so recent as that of our Civil War, thoughtful persons throughout the civilized world wondered whereabouts it was that the great river of Egypt began its journey to the big blue sea.

The source of the historic stream was a mystery to Plato and Socrates, Cæsar and Alexander, Bacon and Shakespeare, Washington and Webster. In solemn majesty the mighty river rolled along through the land of the Pharaohs, defying men to tell whence it came. It made Egypt, but Egypt itself, with all its occult wisdom, did not know whence its creator and preserver came. The source of the Nile! The source of the Nile! For centuries upon centuries its discovery was the foremost of "forlorn hopes."

Exciting, therefore, was the day on which it was announced that Old Nilus had been taken by the beard and made to give up his venerable secret. In 1858 Speke and Grant found Lake Victoria Nyanza, which later on they declared to be the great river's source. From that royal body of water, 4,000 feet above sea level, the Nile begins its 3,400 mile course to the Mediterranean, into which it pours its flood at the rate of 61,500 cubic feet per second.

The long quest for the source of the Nile, for the northwest passage, for the North and South Poles; yes, and the ancient search for the "elixir of life," "perpetual motion" and the "secret of life," have for us this grand significance—they all point to the fact that in the mind of man there is a deathless ambition to know and to do—to fathom the depths of the unknown, to conquer the unconquered, to add more and still more to the sum of its knowledge and achievement.

An Aeroplane in Jerusalem

A CORRESPONDENT from the Holy Land writes: "Jerusalem has no water system, no tram, no electric light, not even gas—not anything that is modern—and yet has just had its aeroplane, and the excitement created by its advent was commensurate with the event.

"Twenty thousand people assembled last night just before sunset on the Plain of Rephaim to watch a great monoplane, carrying the airman Bonnier and a friend, as it circled gracefully round before descending to earth. The streets of Jerusalem, usually deserted after sunset, were thronged till late at night by people hurrying to the plain (which is almost an hour's walk from the Jaffa Gate along the Bethlehem road).

"M. Bonnier left Jerusalem at nine o'clock in the morning on his flight to Cairo via Bethlehem, Hebron and Gaza. He arrived at the Egyptian capital a little after noon. Jerusalem, cubbies made hay while the sun of the airman's visit shone by demanding $3 and even $4 for a usual 50-cent drive."

Stars and Stripes

Wife who was looking, however, proved a heroine by saving our grape juice diplomacy.

Odd, but most of the letters written in favor of a literary test for immigrants are weak in grammar and shaky in spelling.

"Fenway" has a device to stop a train within its own length. Jesse James couldn't have done better.

Bill in Rhode Island Legislature prohibits women from wearing dresses that button up the back. As there are more married men than bachelors in the Legislature, the bill is expected to pass.

Questions Answered

M. M. E.—Dr. H. K. Carroll, late special agent of the United States Census Office, gives the following figures for 1910: Roman Catholics in United States, 12,194,573; Methodists, 6,477,224; Baptists, 5,510,590; Episcopalians, 891,713; Presbyterians, 1,940,046; Lutherans, 2,112,047; Congregationalists, 332,156; Disciples of Christ, 1,420,015; Friends, 119,061; all other denominations, 3,039,065. The Jewish Year Book for 1910 gives the Hebrew population of the United States as 1,-902,926, and Carroll gives the number of Hebrew communicants as 142,000. Of course, there are a great many more Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, etc., than the figures would indicate, as only the actual and in many cases adult members are here reckoned.

J. H. R.—Any figures for the population of China must necessarily be more or less unreliable, inasmuch as the census man is not much in evidence in the land of the Celestials. The estimate, which is probably somewhere near correct, is 402,700,000. As to whether the millions of China will ever become thoroughly modernized, in the sense that the Japanese are, remains to be seen. The Chinaman possesses a plenty of good sense, and there seems to be no valid reason why he should not some time "catch on" to things and forge ahead with the rest of the folks.

S. D.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) is buried in a beautiful cemetery in Elmira, where he lived with his family while he was writing many of his books. The members of his family, his wife and two daughters, are buried in the same plot.
